Emergency Declared ...

State Braces For Flooding

By SAM THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau
With two South Platte flood crests heading for Nebraska a day and a half faster than expected, Gov. J. James Exon declared a state of emergency Wednesday for areas in the path of the flooding.

Two crests, exceeding the level of 1965 flooding but not that of 1971, swept along the South Platte in northeast Colorado Wednesday, necessitating evacuation of at least one town and causing an estimated $50 million in damage.

Sandbagging and diking was being undertaken near Big Springs. Considerable flooding was already being experienced as far east as North Platte, with a few lowland families forced to evacuate. The National Weather Service predicted levels as much as a foot above flood stage between Julesburg and North Platte before the crest passes.

Assistant State Civil Defense Director Burl Johnson embarked for Ogallala and Big Springs Wednesday evening by helicopter at Gov. Exon's direction to survey the flood situation and assist local officials. Fifteen National Guard troops have also been dispatched to the area.

Exon said reports reaching him indicate many persons in the path of the flood have not heeded flood warnings. "We must act now, before the crest hits, to avoid unnecessary losses," he said.

Outflow from the Sutherland Canal is being held back until the crest passes, he said. But outflow from Lake McConaughy already nearly four feet above its recommended level due to above-average rainfall, may even need to be increased, a Civil Defense spokesman said.

The Nebraska situation is "not serious," the spokesman said, "but we have people living in the floodplain, and we want them to get out of there, and get their animals and equipment out of there."

There is already sufficient water to spill the South Platte a quarter to one-half mile out of its banks on each side, the CD spokesman said, and the situation could be "complicated" by rapid snow melt in the Colorado mountains, or by further rainfall in the plains close to the Platte.

A backflow into the North Platte channel could occur when the South Platte crest hits the confluence of the two rivers, he added. The North Platte is not as high as the South Platte, but the National Weather Service predicted it also would climb a foot above its banks in the North Platte area.

Nebraska and Wyoming officials met with representatives of the Bureau of Reclamation and Corps of Engineers in Cheyenne, Wyo., Tuesday, and agreed to keep outflow from North Platte reservoirs in southeast Wyoming at a minimum unless further rainfall occurs.

But a Corps of Engineers official predicted that the recommended flow from Glendo Reservoir would have to be increased very soon because of the heavy flow into that reservoir.

More than twice the average April precipitation has hit between the Alcova and Glendo reservoirs along with more than three times the average runoff.

Northeast of Denver, residents of towns flooded by Kiowa Creek were able to return to their homes Wednesday. Wiggins and Roggen had been evacuated when the creek, draining areas of high rainfall east of Denver, rose earlier in the week. Wiggins was inundated.

Atwood, Colo., was evacuated Wednesday in anticipation of the second South Platte crest, the rose of the two. Civil Defense officials said the first crest had scoured out the river bed for the second one, which is gaining on the first. Both are traveling at an estimated 21-23 m.p.h.

Platte waters are expected to be bank-full or above as far downstream as Duncan for the next week and a half, the Civil Defense spokesman said.

Tornado Strikes: Child Killed

Five-year-old Brent Larson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Larson, was killed when a tornado struck the Connelly Mobil Home Park Wednesday near Lakeville, Minn., a suburb south of Minneapolis-St. Paul. Twelve of the 70 mobile homes were destroyed and about 12 others heavily damaged, police said. Ten persons were injured. Cleanup efforts began soon. In the picture a resident lifts a mattress onto a platform which had held a mobile home.

Fuel Crisis Threatens Guard Camp

... State Departments Also Facing Purchasing Problems

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The fuel shortage has hit state government and left state officials with their fingers crossed hoping they can meet their needs.

The Nebraska National Guard has been unable, as yet, to contract enough gasoline, diesel and aircraft fuel for the 3,000-man 67th Infantry Brigade to go on its two-week summer training at Fort Carson, Colo.

Adj. Gen. Francis Winger has decided that unless enough fuel can be secured by the end of May summer training at Ft. Carson will be cancelled according to Capt. Leonard Krenk, information director for the Guard.

One alternative being considered Krenk said, is to have the June 7-24 summer camp conducted at the guardsmen's home armories.

In addition, it was learned Wednesday that the state has been forced to buy diesel fuel on the open market at higher prices, since there were no bidders for a calendar 1973 contract.

Charles Neal, state purchasing director, said in an interview. "Nobody wants to guarantee price or delivery."

And as if that wasn't enough, the lone bidder on the state's regular gasoline contract, Mobil Oil Co., has told the state it would "appreciate" a voluntary 10% cut in the total gallons used by the state through the remainder of the year.

Neal quickly noted, however, that there has been no talk by Mobil as yet of unilaterally cutting the state's gasoline contract by 10%.

Neal estimated that annually the state uses between 15-20 million gallons of gasoline, road oils and diesel fuel.

The latest contract with Mobil represents a 3-cent a gallon increase in gasoline prices over what the state paid last year to Standard Oil Co. and Texaco. Last year's gas prices ranged from 19.7 cents per gallon to 21.4 cents, depending on the particular station's transportation costs.

This year's prices range from 22.1 cents per gallon to 24.8 cents Standard, Texaco and five other gas companies did not bid this year.

"We really had trouble getting bids this year," Neal said.

The Roads Department and the State Patrol, which account for 2,143 vehicles out of the estimated 5,332 owned by the state, are responsible for approximately 6 million gallons of gasoline per year, Neal said.

He reported that he has discussed the situation informally with the biggest fuel users and said they are making an effort to cut down on fuel use. But thus far Neal said there has been no formal communication to other departments about their consumption of fuel.

The situation at the Nebraska National Guard is presently more critical.

Those changes, however, would not affect the ability to decrease income tax rates. As the Legislature approaches its point-of-no-return decision on 1973-74 spending, it will also face an ultimate decision on its effort to dilute the governor's control over the Department of Administrative Services.

Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings, appropriations chairman and chief sponsor of the DAS bill, said he will attempt to override Exon's veto of LB452 Thursday.

So far, some of the 42,000 gallons of gasoline and 51,000 gallons of diesel fuel has been contracted, Krenk said; the closing date on all contracts is May 11. Consequently, the possibility exists that additional contracts can still be made.

However, the fuel needed for the operations at Ft. Carson (70,000 gallons of gasoline, 45,000 gallons of diesel fuel and 20,000 gallons of aircraft fuel) has not been secured yet, he said.

"Routinely, our needs are forwarded to Ft. Carson, and they would supply us with the fuel and be paid later," Krenk said.

As a last resort, Krenk said the Defense Fuel Supply Center in Virginia has been notified of the Nebraska National Guard's need.

"We have some confidence that everything will fall into place," Krenk said.

Krenk reported that there is no fuel problem with plans for 400 Guardsmen to complete their summer duty in Wyoming.

SE Asia's Role In World Trade 'Optimistic'

Singapore (AP) — The American Management Association has concluded a three-day meeting on southeast Asia's role in world trade and investment with general agreement the future appeared optimistic.

The conference chairman and association president, Kenneth H. J. Clarke, told the closing session both government and private industry participants had exhibited "unbridled optimism" about the future.

Nixon Link Is Doubted

... Investigators Say
The New York Times

Washington — Senate and federal investigators say that on the basis of extended interviews with John W. Dean III, they believe he has no evidence to link President Nixon either to prior knowledge of the Watergate bugging or to any subsequent cover-up, reliable sources said Wednesday.

Sources in the Justice Department and the Select Senate Committee on Presidential Campaign Activities said Dean, former White House counsel, gave his account in full in recent weeks to both investigating groups as he sought to bargain for immunity. He has not appeared before a grand jury.

Because of the limited scope of Dean's testimony, the sources said, prosecutors in the Watergate case are angry with the Senate committee for its decision to seek immunity for Dean before the committee begins public hearings on the case May 17.

Relations worsened. The dispute over the granting of immunity to Dean has worsened poor relations between the two investigating groups, sources in both camps said. Each side is accusing the other of failing to share information and of refusing to cooperate in other ways.

"The Senate is dismantling the criminal cases before our eyes," one source close to the prosecutors remarked in an interview.

"I'm cooperating fully with them," replied Samuel Dash, chief counsel of the Senate committee. "You ask if they're cooperating with us."

Dash was apparently referring to the Justice Department's decision to go slow on the Senate committee's request for immunity for Dean. The Senate request must be submitted to a federal judge for approval. The Justice Department has decided to take the full 30 days allowed under the law before submitting the Senate request to the court.

Eight Met No Delay. Eight previous Senate requests for immunity, including those involving E. Howard Hunt Jr., who pleaded guilty in the Watergate bugging case last January, were processed through the Justice Department with no delay.

The go-slow decision in Dean's case irked Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee.

A reliable Senate source said, however, that the Justice Department's decision to invoke the 30-day delay came as no surprise to many members of the Senate committee in view of the importance of Dean as a witness against H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, his former White House superiors, and the competition between the two investigating groups.

Other sources said both the Senate and the federal prosecutors had concluded that Dean was capable of implicating only Haldeman, former White House chief of staff, and Ehrlichman, the President's former adviser for domestic affairs.

Thoroughly Debriefed. "We know precisely what Dean can do," a federal source said. "We have debriefed him from A to Z."

Both Newsweek and Time magazine published articles this week depicting Dean as prepared to implicate Nixon in knowing about the Watergate cover-up.

In papers filed with a federal court last week, Dean said he had taken classified documents dealing with the Watergate case from his White House office and placed them in a safe-deposit box in a Virginia bank for safekeeping.

"We knew what was in that bank safe-deposit box even before he (Dean) put it in there," a Justice Department source said. He described the papers as national security documents that "have nothing to do with anything." The official did not amplify his comment, beyond repeating that the papers had nothing to do with any Nixon involvement in the Watergate case.

Carpenter Plans Final Bid For Budget Action

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff said he will give the Legislature a final opportunity Thursday to consider pending spending bills other than budget measures.

A list of pending bills shows spending proposals totaling more than $32 million, some $8.4 million of which involves state tax funds.

The Legislature is currently operating under a policy which restricts its general fund spending to the regular budget bills.

But Carpenter said he will make a motion Thursday to give the Legislature an opportunity to consider other spending bills if it wishes.

The largest pending spending proposal is the $20 million increase in state aid to schools contained in LB172.

But that measure is not affected by the spending limitation since the $20 million would come from federal revenue sharing funds, rather than the state tax supported general fund.

The largest bill affected by the spending freeze is LB235, which would increase payments for aid to dependent children by an estimated $7.8 million, including $3.3 million in general fund money.

Other major bills trapped by the spending freeze are LB445, a $1.6 million teacher retirement funding proposal, and LB505, which proposes a $2,320,930 deficit appropriation for state aid for the construction of municipal waste treatment facilities.

A $500,000 appropriation in LB311 would increase state aid for community care of the mentally retarded, and LB542 the miscellaneous claims bill, includes $469,823 in general fund spending.

Altogether, 17 bills are affected by the freeze.

The Legislature decided to call a halt to spending when it voted to enact the governor's operational budget bill, as proposed, in an effort to hold spending within limits which would permit a decrease in the personal income tax rate.

Since that time, the Appropriations Committee has decided to pursue its own capital construction budget recommendations and propose slightly larger budget supplements than recommended by Gov. J. James Exon.

Those changes, however, would not affect the ability to decrease income tax rates.

As the Legislature approaches its point-of-no-return decision on 1973-74 spending, it will also face an ultimate decision on its effort to dilute the governor's control over the Department of Administrative Services.

Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings, appropriations chairman and chief sponsor of the DAS bill, said he will attempt to override Exon's veto of LB452 Thursday.

Palestinian Guerrillas Hit By Lebanese Warplanes

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanese jet fighters rocketed and strafed Palestinian guerrilla positions near the Syrian border late Wednesday after a day-long artillery barrage against commando infiltrators.

Residents of villages near the border said the jets — Hawker Hunters, Mirages and a Fouga Magister — hit positions near the villages of Yanta, Deir el Ashayer and Bayader al Adass for more than two hours.

A Lebanese army spokesman confirmed the report. There were 20 sorties, according to witnesses.

President Suleiman Franjeh halted the use of air force jets Tuesday night when he appealed to both sides to abide by the cease-fire.

But the Lebanese army, which has assumed control of the country under the state of emergency, warned guerrillas that "if they do not abide by the cease-fire we will retaliate intensively and violently." The army said the firing was in self-defense "to save lives."

Three hours after the air strikes, a military communique said a joint army-guerrilla commission overseeing the cease-fire reached a "series of agreements to make it final and prevent incidents that might strain the situation again."

The statement gave no details.

News reports of the fighting are subject to military censorship.

The open conflict erupted last week, triggered by the arrest of eight guerrillas accused of carrying explosives and the kidnapping in turn of two army corporals.

The incidents reflected long-simmering tensions resulting from Lebanese desire to curb Palestinian militancy that makes the country subject to Israeli retaliation.

Ag Bill Sets 'Established Price' For Wheat, Feed Grain, Cotton

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Agriculture Committee Tuesday approved a new farm bill that could cut farm program costs to the government when the market is high, but that might result in higher federal costs if markets sagged.

The committee set an "established price" for wheat feed grains and cotton amounting to 70 percent of parity. That rate was deemed by the committee to be a fair market price to the farmer.

As long as the market price remains at the established price, farmers would get no government payments. The committee said in the case of cotton alone this would amount to saving to the government $750 million.

If the Agriculture Department established price is less than market price, however, a production-incentive payment would be made to farmers equal to the difference between the target price and the prices actually being received by farmers.

The established prices would be adjusted each year according to changes in production costs.

An 80-percent established-price program was also approved by the committee in the bill for all dairy products.

The established prices set by the committee are $2.28 a bushel for wheat, $1.53 per bushel for corn and 43 cents a pound for cotton.

The proposal for this type program for wheat was made by Sen. Milton Young, R-N.D., but the committee accepted it also for feed grains and cotton.

Chairman Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., said the Young plan would give the administration "the benefit of the doubt."

"If the predictions we have heard about expanded foreign and domestic markets for agriculture come true, it won't cost the taxpayers one thin dime for supplemental payments. However, if the experts miss their predictions, then the government which would have the major hand in creating any possible crop surpluses, would share the cost of the error with the farmers," Talmadge said.

The established price plan was approved for a five-year period. The dairy program is for one year.

Krogh Quits, Takes Blame For Sending Out Burglars

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another top level executive quit the Nixon administration Wednesday, accepting full responsibility for dispatching a team of burglars to rifle Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatric files.

"With public confidence in our government already shaken by the Watergate affair, and with the complete affirmation of your personal integrity so imperative at this time, I cannot remain in the administration," Egil Krogh wrote President Nixon.

Krogh was undersecretary of transportation, a $42,500-a-year job he took last January after leaving a White House post as assistant to John D. Ehrlichman.

Ehrlichman and former White House chief of staff H. R. Haldeman were at the federal courthouse Wednesday to appear before the Watergate grand jury.

Another former administration aide, Charles W. Colson, met at the courthouse again with federal prosecutors and was expected to go before the grand jury later.

A judge in a Watergate-related civil suit was asked for an order compelling Jeb Stuart Magruder to give testimony. Magruder was deputy director of the campaign committee and has been implicated in published reports with the planning of Watergate.

The 33-year-old Krogh had said earlier he agreed to the burglary mission hatched by Watergate conspirators G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt, whom he had hired as "plumbers" to investigate leaks of the Pentagon Papers.

Liddy, Hunt and two Cubans broke into the office of Dr. Lewis Fielding and searched the files of Ellsberg, now on trial for stealing the Pentagon Papers.

Hunt has testified that he and Liddy supervised the burglary of the office of Dr. Lewis Fielding in Beverly Hills, Calif. He said he and Liddy photographed Fielding's office and cased the operation a week in advance and then returned with three Cubans Sept. 3, 1971 and acted as lookouts while they searched the files of Ellsberg, now on trial for stealing the Pentagon Papers.

Krogh's resignation came as the White House moved to recover original documents that ousted presidential counsel John W. Dean III secreted in a bank safe deposit box before he was fired by Nixon.

"These are White House papers ... classified documents taken from the White House and we want them back," said press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler.

Dean had sent the keys to the box to Chief U.S. Dist. Judge John J. Sirica saying that on one hand he feared they would otherwise be destroyed and, on the other, that he Dean had no right to them since he no longer had security clearance.

"As Mr. Dean acknowledges, these documents 'may have a bearing' on the subjects under investigation" by the Watergate grand jury, the government's brief said. It voiced no objection to copies being held by the court and by prosecutors.

The special Senate Watergate committee, due to begin hearings May 17, also is expected to ask for a copy.

Common Cause, which is using the re-election committee to force disclosure of campaign fund sources, said Magruder refused to answer all questions at a deposition May 3 on advice of his lawyer. The motion quoted the lawyer as saying Magruder in grand jury appearances was advised that he "stands in a position tantamount to one who is virtually a defendant."

Common Cause argued Magruder waived all his rights against self-incrimination because he has testified freely before the grand jury and prosecutors.

Ehrlichman Paved Way For CIA Help

WASHINGTON (AP) — The director of the Central Intelligence Agency told senators Wednesday that former White House domestic adviser John D. Ehrlichman smoothed the way for another White House aide to obtain technical help the aide later used in a Los Angeles burglary.

Ehrlichman has denied any knowledge of the burglary of the office of a psychiatrist for a Pentagon Papers trial defendant until sometime after the burglary.

Director James L. Schlesinger, who said the CIA had no knowledge of the burglary mission itself, said Ehrlichman made the initial contact with Marine Corps Gen. Robert Cushman, then the CIA's deputy director.

Schlesinger said Ehrlichman called Cushman on July 8, 1971, stating that E. Howard Hunt had been appointed a White House security consultant.

Hunt, an employee of the CIA staff from 1949 to 1970, has testified he took part in the September 1971 burglary of the office of a Los Angeles psychiatrist in an attempt to examine the file of Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg.

Ehrlichman has told FBI interviewers he didn't learn of the burglary until after it happened. Ehrlichman's former aide, Egil "Bud" Krogh, has said in a sworn affidavit that Ehrlichman authorized "covert activities" in advance, but that when Ehrlichman learned of the breakin he said Krogh had exceeded his instructions. Krogh has accepted full responsibility for the burglary.

Schlesinger told reporters the CIA had been unduly careless in handling the situation. He said he had ordered immediate steps to prevent future involvement of the agency in covert operations inside the United States, an area from which the CIA is barred by law.

Source Says FBI Participated In Planning Convention Protests

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI agents and informers infiltrated the leadership of most groups that demonstrated at the national political conventions last summer and took part in planning protests, a Justice Department source said Wednesday.

The source said he attended several department meetings at which convention intelligence reports from the FBI and other federal agencies, including Army intelligence, were discussed.

He said then-Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst ran the meetings and former FBI acting Director L. Patrick Gray III and Robert Mardian, a former top department official who then was a staff member of the Committee for the Re-election of the President, attended them. The careers of all three men later were touched by the Watergate scandal.

The source said he did not know the names of any of the groups the FBI infiltrated or of any protest planning that undercover agents and informers may have prompted during the Miami Beach, Fla., conventions of the Democratic and Republican parties.

An FBI spokesman said the bureau maintains surveillance through agents and informants on groups deemed a threat to national security. He said there were such groups in Miami Beach but declined to name them.

"This does not mean we had informants in legitimate peace groups," he added.

The source said that Mardian, head of the Justice Department's Internal Security Division until March 1972, had no status within the department at the time of the meetings. His job then was solely with the re-election committee. No representative of the Democratic Party ever attended the meetings, he said.

During the meetings, the source said, Mardian would need Gray on the quality of the FBI's convention intelligence reports and sometimes referred to them as rewritten versions of Army reports.

The source said that Army intelligence reports were considered the most comprehensive received before the conventions.

By the time demonstrators arrived in Miami Beach in early July, he said, Gray reported that the FBI was taking part in the planning and policy decisions of most of the protesters' groups.

During the conventions, the source said, Gray told an official, "One of our people is a nude girl in there." On several occasions during both conventions, young demonstrators swam nude in the public pool at People's Park.

About 2,000 young people representing groups ranging from Vietnam veterans to Gay Liberation encamped at a site near Convention Hall that they dubbed People's Park.

Groups of demonstrators marched daily from the park to rallies in front of Convention Hall or hotels where candidates and delegates stayed. Until the final night of the Republican convention, relations between demonstrators and Miami Beach police were cordial and there was little violence.

Groups of demonstrators tried to disrupt traffic and clashed with police during the final night. Tear gas was used to clear the streets and about 1,200 demonstrators were arrested. Federal troops stationed nearby were never used.

Neither Kleindienst, Mardian nor Gray could be reached for comment on the source's statements.

Published reports have linked Mardian to efforts to get rid of evidence linking the Nixon campaign organization to the Watergate incident. He appeared Monday before the federal grand jury investigating Watergate

Two State Department Officials Let Hunt See Secret War Files

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two of the highest State Department officials authorized convicted Watergate burglar E. Howard Hunt to read and copy 240 highly classified documents concerning the Vietnam war, a department spokesman said Wednesday.

Department spokesman Charles W. Bray said then Deputy Undersecretary William Macomber and Deputy Undersecretary U. Alexis Johnson specifically authorized Hunt to review the classified material in September 1971.

Bray said the authorization was given at the request in both writing and by phone from Egil Krogh and David Young, then White House aides.

The original request was contained in a memo written Aug. 11, 1971 to Macomber. Bray said the memorandum was "specifically addressed to investigations relating to Pentagon Papers leakage and requested ... copies of all cables which had passed between the State Department or the White House on one hand and our embassy in Saigon for the period April 1 - Nov. 30, 1963."

Previously, the department had acknowledged that Hunt had access to the documents but had indicated it did not know who had issued the authorization.

Right now fungus is present in most lawns and is just waiting for some warm humid weather to rampage through that beautiful green carpet.

Look closely at the grass blades. Is there an undertone of yellow or dead blades when you mow? Upon close examination, are there black spots or spores on the blades? If so, then you have fungus. Right now it is just starting, but with a little warm weather — your lawn will fade out and can be totally killed. So apply a fungicide, protect your lawn, and save yourself a lot of work later.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

There are some redeeming features out of the political scandals that have rocked the Nixon administration in Washington. One obvious by-product is the fact that the American people still have a moral standard at a time when many believed that the morality of the nation had gone to pot.

The illegal campaign activities that constitute the Watergate affair have been viewed with disdain by a vast majority of the American people. Thus, it cannot be said that the truth, that old-fashioned concepts of honesty, are any less in vogue today than they were a hundred years ago.

What this means is that the average individual in this nation still tries to live by a decent moral standard, whether he might always succeed at it or not. It means that trickery, lying, cheating, etc., are not characteristics found acceptable to the average person.

If anything could be more alarming than Watergate and all its ramifications and side bars, it would be a lack of concern about it on the part of the citizenry in general. But we remain a nation that strives to live by law, and not the law of the jungle.

Thus, Watergate is not an example of U.S. morality, but rather, is just the opposite. Citizens of this nation continue to expect men and women to maintain a certain level of honor in their dealings with one another. They expect a minimal measure of integrity out of the institutions that are supposed to serve them and of which they may be a part.

We are not, as some pessimists try to paint us, a people who now rely upon lying, cheating, stealing, etc., to get some place in the world. We still do not believe that the end will justify any means. We do not subscribe to any notion that there are some people who are above the law.

And Watergate will serve for a long time, as such scandals have done in the past, to impress upon all people the dangers that always lurk beneath the surface of government. Our founding fathers tried to establish a system wherein the government would be truly responsive to the will of the people and where the rights of citizens were held inviolate.

But by its very nature, this philosophy is constantly challenged by government and must be constantly safeguarded by the watchfulness of the citizenry. At times we tend to become a little too cavalier in our attitude toward constitutional rights.

There is a tendency to think that our people have had their rights for so long that there is no real way in which they could now be denied. That, however, is proven by Watergate to be a very risky assumption.

Government is one of the means by which a society seeks to discipline itself but it must never cease to be a voluntary arrangement. The threat lies in the fact that a disciplined society, which we are, carries a heavy potential for abuse, more creeping than gradual.

This nation has experienced few dangers of any kind of revolution in which the government would be forcibly overthrown and something else put in its place. Where democracy and our Republic are eroded is in the gradual assumption by government of powers it should not have.

This is why the right of privacy is so important, even though it may sometimes hamper the cause of justice. The same is true of the right of free speech and the assumption of innocence until proof of guilt, although they, too, may at times be a burden to justice.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE Watergate Chance To Prune Out Jobs

NEW YORK All of a sudden, what with the scandal and all, nobody wants to work for the White House. And this may be the only good thing we'll get out of Watergate.

Anything that prunes the government payroll can't be all bad.

After all, hasn't Mr. Nixon been talking for years about streamlining the monolithic maze of bureaucratic bumbling? Well, here's a chance. Let's hope he grabs it.

Instead of scrounging around to fill all those empty jobs, why not just declare them to be in word "operative." Chances are, once the screaming dies down, the President will discover what most everybody already knows: Many a paper shuffler at the public trough wouldn't even be missed.

Maybe a little less "government" is what we could all use more of right now. At the very least, it would save us millions in salaries. And, it could weed out the people stumbling over each other in duplicate jobs, it might even turn out to be more efficient, too.

It would take some getting used to, of course. Federal featherbedding has been a way of Washington life for so long the "could turkey" cure would come as a shock. Some government employees might even have to do a full day's work.

Better yet and we can always dream of it: White House recruiters are having so much trouble filling all those jobs, it might even dawn on them to reconsider whether all those jobs really need to be filled.

Many a taxpayer is already ahead of them on this. One thing the President has never made perfectly clear is why the government needs so many thousands of bureaus and commissions and consultants, anyway.

If he can spare a moment from the Watergate mess, Mr. Nixon might find time to wonder if he couldn't get along without appointing ANYBODY to those 50 top-level federal jobs nobody seems to want.

As for hunting up bodies to fill 26 sub-cabinet posts, why bother? Half the time he acts as if the 11 top cabinet officers weren't there, either.

Ditto for the 400 vacancies in lower and middle-level government. It might mean fewer federal reports and statistical studies and bureaucratic backrounders (in triplicate, of course). But that would free employees still on the job to get at the important work piling up on those 400 empty desks, such as stamping everything "top secret."

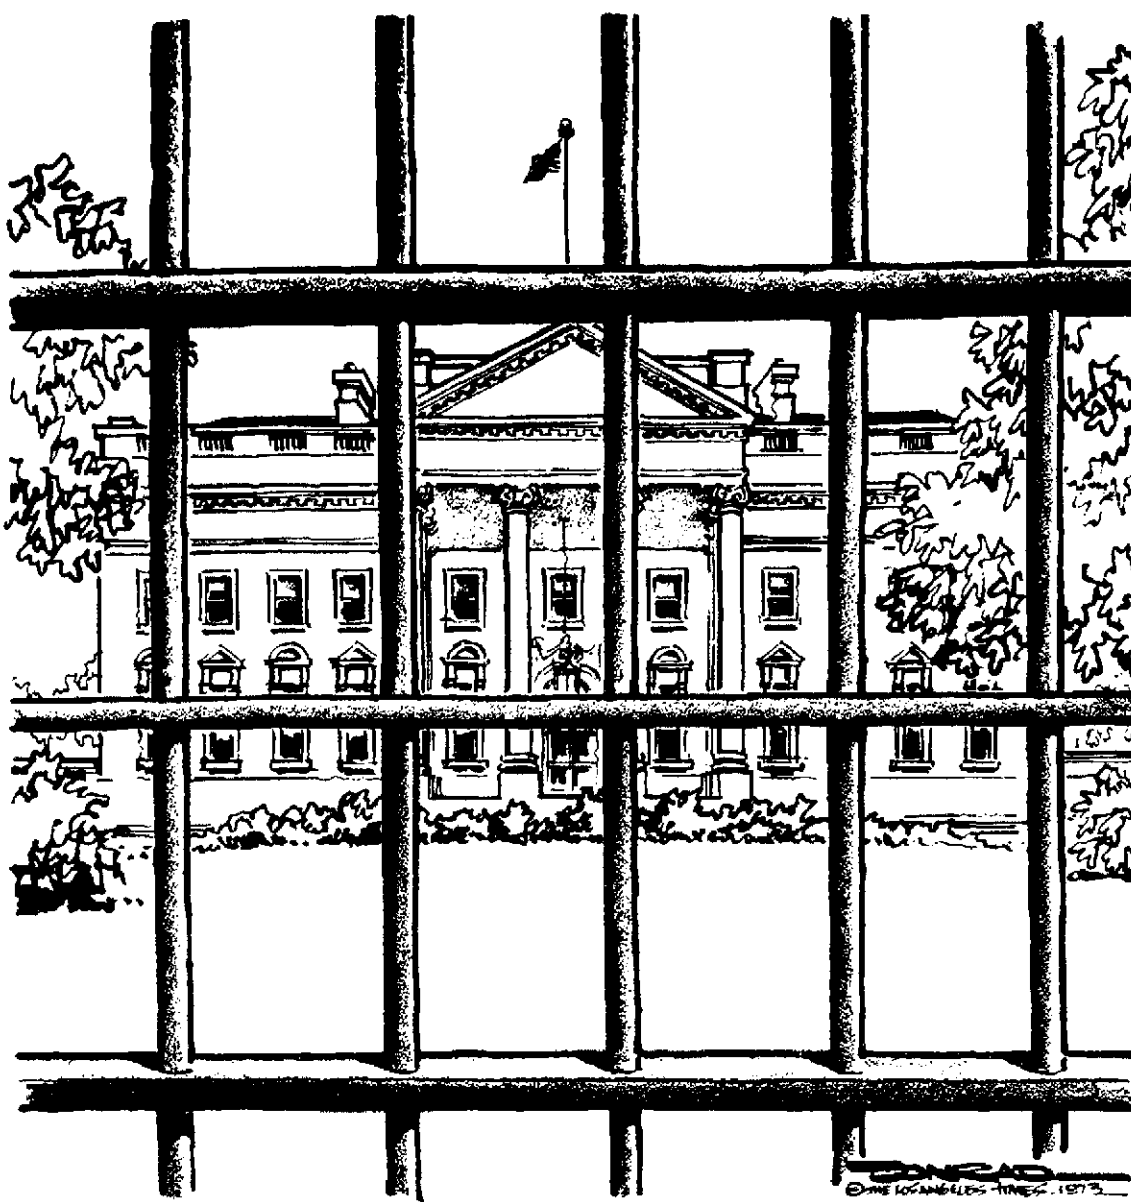

Besides, by this time, Mr. Nixon may be having second thoughts about the efficiency of advisers anyway. A smaller staff might be easier to keep an eye on.

The shortage of ambassadors is another sticky problem. Despite the many fat cats on the presidential campaign honor roll, there are still 23 countries waiting for us to send them a top fund contributor (pardon me, diplomat).

Tradition probably requires that Mr. Nixon fill those political appointments eventually. But, remembering a few of the amateurs he's sent abroad in the past, one wonders if he wouldn't be better off without anybody in some of those foreign embassies.

When you get right down to it, Henry can handle almost anything that comes up. And, so far, he's not quit. He's got compassion.

Law And Order Administration

Guilt By Association

While the press can take credit for bringing the abuses of the President's re-election effort to the surface in the face of a hostile and closed-mouth campaign apparatus and a public that was apathetic until the facts were revealed, some in the press are now overstepping their bounds with reference to President Nixon's involvement.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., one of the President's biggest critics, has denounced news stories suggesting without proof that Nixon was implicated in the Watergate Scandal as "demagoguery" and "McCarthyism at its worst."

"President Nixon is being tried, sentenced and executed by rumor and allegation," Proxmire said, referring to published reports of former White House counsel John Dean's charge that Nixon was directly involved in a Watergate cover-up. "As the senator who succeeded Joe McCarthy in the United States Senate, I find this kind of persecution and condemnation without trial McCarthyism at its worst," he said.

We would agree with Proxmire to the extent that the press, in condemning the zeal which it claims motivated Watergate, is inflicted with similar zeal.

The McCarthyist attitude, if it can be called that, has also been directed at others who were not directly involved in the various crimes of the past campaign and who apparently were never even close to the situation.

Vice President Agnew is an example. Political commentators who have assessed the early prospects for those who may be seeking the 1976 Republican presidential nomination almost to a man have suggested that Agnew's efforts will be crippled because he must bear the cross of Watergate.

Why should he? Unless new and startling facts reveal Agnew's complicity, the people may not associate him with Watergate even though certain elements of the press suggest they should.

Agnew is not our choice for president by any means, but we don't think he should be pictured as scandal-tainted merely because he holds a minor job in the Nixon administration. He was about as far out of the mainstream of the 1972 re-election effort as any politician of stature could be. Nixon talks to his vice president about as often as he sees his tailor. And Nixon's aides — those directly responsible for Watergate — hold the vice president in contempt. So it would be an incredible development if it comes out that Agnew had a hand in planning or approving the kind of strategy that resulted in the mess of corruption.

His defense of the President during the current crisis has not been as strong as, say, Hubert Humphrey's defense of Lyndon Johnson's Vietnam policy during Humphrey's vice presidency and Agnew, if he wins the nomination, could independently champion clean government just as Humphrey proclaimed independence on the war issue.

Agnew will not be the only Republican treated unfairly in this matter unless the press sticks to its original objective of ferreting out the facts of the case. The tad of covering all administration officers and Republican office-holders with the Watergate taint does smack of McCarthyism.

Leonhardy's Ransom

The U.S. government finds itself in a predicament of sorts in connection with the release by guerrilla kidnappers in Mexico of U.S. Consul General Terrance G. Leonhardy.

The Mexican government met the original demand of the kidnappers: the release and safe conduct to Cuba of 30 political prisoners. A subsequent demand for $80,000 ransom money was met by a loan from a local bank secured by Leonhardy's name.

Who will repay it? The position of the U.S. government is that ransom demands will not be met because to do so would encourage other acts of terrorism against U.S. officials and citizens abroad.

Leonhardy probably won't be called upon to make good the loan. If he does have to repay, a good case for kidnapping insurance can be made.

The government in all probability will quietly take Leonhardy off the hook, as it should, without publicly renouncing its hard-nosed policy. But any efforts at deception will be readily recognized by terrorists everywhere and the policy against meeting such demands will be no better deterrent in the future than it has been.

The Leonhardy case is another example of the high risks involved in diplomatic work and the futility of trying to stop terrorist action or prevent them from getting away with something.

JACK ANDERSON

John Dean And ITT

WASHINGTON — We now have evidence that ex-White House counsel John Dean directed not only the Watergate cover-up but the earlier ITT cover-up as well. In both cases, he obstructed investigators, suppressed evidence and tried to influence the testimony.

Here's what we have now learned about his ITT operation: — During the ITT hearings, he would slip up to Capitol Hill and operate out of Vice President Agnew's office. On one occasion, Dean phoned the Senate Judiciary Committee and asked a secretary to deliver a message to attorney Edward P. Tappich. The lawyer, formerly associated in the same law firm with Dean, represented ITT consultant Jack Gleason who had been called to testify. The secretary handed Tappich a note, asking him to contact Dean in the Vice President's office.

In these august quarters, the two men discussed what Gleason might be asked on the witness stand. Then Tappich huddled with his client before the testimony.

As part of our case against ITT, we turned over to the Senate the celebrated Dita Beard memo, which linked the settlement of ITT's anti-trust troubles with a $400,000 commitment to help finance the Republican convention. The Senate asked the FBI to determine whether the memo was a forgery and got back a report that it was written on Dita Beard's typewriter with the ribbon she was using on the day it was dated.

But unknown to the senators, Dean acted as FBI chief L. Patrick Gray for the memo. Not long after Gray delivered the memo to Dean, it was sneaked to ITT which hired its own experts to try to prove it was a forgery.

Howard Hunt, who earlier burglarized the offices of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist and later helped plot the Watergate break-in, was also assigned to the ITT case. He reported that Dita Beard had fabricated her memo to blackmail her bosses.

White House aide Charles Colson dispatched Hunt, wearing a preposterous red wig, to Denver with a message for Dita Beard that it would not be held against her if she would confess the alleged forgery. But the indomitable Dita insisted to Hunt that the memo was authentic. It came as a total surprise to the White House when she later hedged.

In addition to Hunt, ITT hired the famed private detective firm Intertel, and Dean asked Assistant Attorney General Robert Mardian to investigate us. Mardian used government gumshoes to stake out my house and tail me. Investigative reports from both Mardian and Intertel passed across Dean's desk.

— Most flagrant of all, Dean was behind the suppression of 34 cartons of documents that ITT had delivered under subpoena to the Securities and Exchange Commission. These papers included confidential memos which contradicted the sworn testimony of then-Attorney General John Mitchell at the ITT hearing and implicated Vice President Agnew and former Treasury Secretary John Connally in the ITT antitrust fix.

Under the law, the SEC falls under the jurisdiction of Congress, so House Commerce chairman Harley Staggers, D-W.Va., asked to see the ITT documents. But then-SEC Chairman William Casey defied Congress and sent his executive assistant, Charles Whitman, and general counsel, Bradford Cook, over to the White House on the hunt. They spent an hour with John Dean.

"There's a number of people like the Vice President . . . and Mitchell (in the documents) and it looks like they're going to be used for political purposes," Whitman reported to Dean. The White House counsel advised them not to send the documents up to Capitol Hill, at least not without a subpoena.

LA VERNA HASSLER

Patchwork Prairie Country

Today the rain still comes down and the day is chill. I decided to have another oven-baked dinner before the hot days of spring(?) and summer set in to make baking less of an adventure. I made a pineapple upside-down cake and baking powder biscuits. Then I tried a new recipe using a commercial spaghetti sauce with sliced green onions and green pepper added for additional zest. This was mixed with uncooked rice, a can of chicken broth and put in the bottom of a baking dish. On top I arranged browned pork chops.

The fragrance coming from the oven was so taste-tempting, I almost set the clock up another hour so we could eat earlier. Fresh green asparagus completed the dinner. Tonight we will revive thoughts of our dinner and eat soup and sandwiches.

My enthusiasm for making a garden soared when The Farmer began tilling the soil near the house. The moist fertile earth was too much to resist . . . the promise of new life and growth . . . the hope for an abundant harvest blew in on an errant breeze. Consequently I planted the usual radishes, onions and lettuce. Then I added hybrid tomatoes, frost-proof cabbage and green peppers.

I have never planted hybrid tomatoes so this is a new adventure in gardening for me. There are those who tell me the yield from hybrids is far greater than from other kinds of tomatoes, yet others have tried them and said they didn't think they were really so great.

I went to a nearby city yesterday and while there I was to pick up a set of planter plates for planting corn and a set for planting milo. The Farmer said they were ordered, they were plastic and for a six-row planter.

It seemed like a simple errand but when I stopped at the farm store, they could not find the order although all the new plastic plates had arrived.

I had all the information except for the fact that I did not know the kind of planter The Farmer had . . . a fact he assumed they knew and a fact he assumed I should have known.

The man at the farm store named several types of planters for which they ordered parts. This was of little value. I know the kind of tractor he has and the name of the combine but when it comes to the planter, the harrow, the disk, and all the other farm machinery that is found around any farm today, I will have to admit I am a dropout.

Since The Farmer had not fertilized the ground and was not ready to plant corn, anyway, it gave another opportunity for getting the plates. It rained during the night so The Farmer went after the plates himself and I have learned the name of the planter he has . . . just in case I am sent to town for other repairs.

It's graduation time again and many young people are filled with fresh hopes and dreams for the future just as we were in our day. It wishing could make it so. I would wish that all the goals set by the young people could be accomplished in their lifetime. There are no more frontiers to be pushed westward for the adventuresome but there are other frontiers to be challenged and conquered such as diseases, hunger around the world, a new ecological balance and knowledge and compassion for all ethnic groups.

Somewhere I heard these words. They seem to say it all.

"As long as knowledge questions, 'Why?' As long as earth has tears, Will youth be challenged and youth dare To conquer new frontiers."

Letters To The Editor

Brevity in letters is requested but length in itself will have no bearing on publication. Writers are advised that needless details and repetitious matter will be edited out of letters. Too frequent contributions from one person on the same subject may be rejected. All letters must be accompanied by the writer's true name but may be submitted for publication under a pen name or initials. However, letters will be printed under a pen name or initials at the editor's discretion.

Remember When?

Beaver Crossing, Neb.
In the good old days before greed and government took charge, do you remember when . . .

A farmer could plant what he pleased?

The aged were cared for by their children?

We entered war to win it?

A life sentence didn't mean parole in 10 years?

Our flag was respected at home and abroad?

Charity was a virtue instead of big business?

The doctor's first question was "Where does it hurt?" rather than "Do you have insurance?"

The Supreme Court protected society rather than the criminal? Attending college was a privilege instead of a right?

A father went on welfare only out of desperation and got off as soon as possible?

U.S. Grant was the name of a man, rather than a federal hand-out?

America conducted her foreign affairs without consulting the U.N.?

Giving aid to the enemy was treason?

Children were taught manners and they respected people and their property?

You were not afraid of the streets or in your own home?

Credit was honor-bound instead of a "must" to exist?

Bankruptcy was a disgrace, instead of a way out?

Gold Star Mother

Lincoln, Neb.
This poem was written by my aunt, Alice Hinz, during World War II. Since it is nearly Mother's Day, I thought it would be appropriate. She is 89 years old now and confined to a hospital bed.

The little gold star, worn on her breast, The heart beneath it knows the rest. Faithfully saying, "This will be done." They are living with him, his daughter or son.

There is a land where wars do not rage, She has found comfort and strength on the Holy Page. Trusting and knowing, when life's battles are won She again will meet this daughter or son.

Let us reverse the little gold star, Worn by these mothers wherever they are. This little gold star shines in heaven above. Where wars are no more, there reigns peace and love.

When she walks in our midst, each day that we live, Let us never forget, of her all she did give. Just help her to smile as she walks on life's road, Compassion and love will help lift her load.

Yes, let us reverse the little gold star, Worn by these mothers wherever they are. Pray God for peace, the end of all wars. There will be no more mothers wearing gold stars.

MARIE KUHNER

Reliable Press

Lincoln, Neb.
The stupidity of the Watergate affair is matched, even exceeded, by the (out of proportion) coverage by the press and TV news media. No one can condone the wrongful efforts of those engaged in unlawful yet needless intentions to secure information as to the "McGovern for President" plans. However, no one was killed and no money stolen. Disclosures of this affair serve to dramatize the various activities of both major political parties. Both are continually using every means to discredit each other.

The Watergate affair has been a political blunder. Yet it in no way matches the consequences of the blunder which got us into the Vietnam war. Fifty thousand American boys gave their lives in this war, and for what? The billions of dollars spent could have been put to much better use at home.

The press, TV and reporters of the Cronkite and Anderson ilk have for years attempted to destroy Nixon. News has been slanted, distorted and even invented in order to discredit the administration. The reputations of many men have been destroyed by this kind of reporting. Generally the news media claim and usually are immune to prosecution for slander. Even when they have been convicted, their victims can never regain their former standing.

In my opinion and I hope that of many others, coverage of the Watergate affair should now more than ever question the credibility of the news media. We need a free press but it must also be a responsible and reliable press.

The Right To Live

Lincoln, Neb.

I do not appreciate the idea of killing dogs that do not have a home. I think it is very cruel, even though it is more painless when they are given shots that put them to sleep.

I have seen that demonstrated on "60 Minutes". The vet gives the shot in the heart, waits and the dog falls dead in his arms. Another fellow takes it over to a bigger pile of beautiful young and old dead dogs.

I think dogs have as much right as humans to live. I also think it is terrible that the people who have pets just don't care about them any more, and give them to the dog pound. On "60 Minutes," the vet said that if those people knew what happened to them, they might mind, and not give them to the pound.

They could try a little harder to find homes for them, too.

CONCERNED FIFTH-GRADER

Just For A While

Lincoln, Neb.

I opened a door yesterday and stepped into the past. For just a little while . . . I wouldn't want to tarry long.

I was a child once again . . . in the home where I was raised. I gazed into each familiar room . . . but it was the kitchen I loved best.

There was the same old wooden breadboard . . . and there, arranged upon it, Mama's home-baked bread . . . and coffee-cake all sprinkled with brown sugar.

The aroma was unmistakable . . . and my Mother's smiling face beamed as she said, "Have some, for old times' sake." The clock on the cupboard kept ticking away . . . Ah, listen — there, its friendly strike.

Somewhere the scent of lilacs was in the air . . . and a black and white kitten appeared from out of nowhere!

A time to remember . . . and I loved being there, but just for a little while. I wouldn't want to tarry long . . . for this is today.

Self-Made Tycoon Stresses Work Ethic

By ROBERT PETERSON
One of the kingpins of American industry is Floyd D. Odum. At 81 years of age, this wealthy industrialist can look back on more than half a century as a multi-millionaire, counselor to Presidents, and head of dozens of companies including the giant Atlas Corporation. Yet he started with nothing, and his first job was as a ditch digger.

Active and unretired, he's currently up to his aging ears in a housing venture — creating a giant condominium apartment development on his 732-acre ranch at Indian Palms, Calif.

Many elderly tycoons are eternally optimistic about the future. But not Odum. He fears that the splendid American work ethic which created this great country has been undermined by those who look down their noses at hard work.

He was quoted in a recent interview as saying, "It's work that makes an economy strong — not sitting around. The five-day week hasn't helped anything except inflation. What are folks to do with that extra day? They just get into trouble. People aren't trained for leisure."

He also feels most businessmen fall short. "They are not as much on the ball as earlier generations, because they are too much interested in golf, options, and pensions instead of making money for their companies."

And he doesn't like Uncle Sam's intervention in business. "Government has got to stop dipping into every little business venture. It's sticking its fingers too far into everything. If we're going to make goods to sell to the world market at a profit we've got to work harder and produce more at lower cost."

Many top businessmen support Odum's views. But one wonders how the average employee feels. For example, do most workers really favor a five-day week? Those in physically taxing, uninteresting jobs are probably glad to call it quits when Friday comes along. But it's likely that millions of workers in interesting, stimulating kinds of work wouldn't mind working Saturdays if they could earn a little extra. If more workers were eager to work harder and longer, it's possible that our economy would be a lot sounder than it is today.

Many who frown on leisure and worry about what welfare's doing to this country will find meaning in a letter this column received from a man who visited Mt. Ranier National Park. "When visitors arrive at the park," he writes, "they are admonished not to give handouts to the deer because it causes them to lose their initiative and they're unable to fend for themselves when there are no tourists around."

"They are told not to give anything to the bears because it causes them to become insolent and to demand more handouts, even using force if necessary to gain what they consider their just due."

"They are told not to feed the chipmunks and squirrels because it causes them to gather in one place for their gratuities, thereby disturbing nature's balance."

"Now substitute people for animals, the federal government for tourists, and federal aid for human handouts, and think about the ultimate results."

Handicapped Employment Measures OK'd

Job discrimination against disabled persons becomes taboo under terms of a bill passed by the legislature Wednesday.

The measure amends the Nebraska Fair Employment Practices Act so that in addition to protecting persons from employment discrimination because of race, color, religion, sex or national origin, it protects persons from job discrimination because of disability.

Sen. Duke Snyder of Omaha sponsored the bill, LB266, and it was passed 40-0 on final reading.

The legislature Wednesday also passed for the second time LB180, which removes the national life safety code from state law but authorizes the fire marshal to draft rules and regulations based on the code.

Exon Signs Capital Construction Funding Measure

By The Associated Press
Gov. J. James Exon reported to the legislature Wednesday he has signed into law — "with reluctance" — a bill which has the effect of permitting capital construction projects to be undertaken with appropriations spread over a period of several years.

Exon said the bill "may have some drafting deficiencies which may require future action by your body."

"This measure attempts to clear the way, as authorized by the people in approving a constitutional amendment last year, for committing future legislatures and the executive to action on future capital construction," Exon's letter said.

In effect, by LB547, the legislature has attempted to set up the machinery to allow the binding of future appropriations.

"Evidently your intention was to allow for construction contracts to be binding over a number of years."

"It would appear that you may not have accomplished that end since the bill provides, 'construction may be commenced after contracts are awarded, but the obligation of the state in any fiscal year under such contracts shall not exceed the amount appropriated for that purpose in such fiscal year.'"

"Such language could impair even starting construction if this bid were in excess of your authorization for a given year."

The bill, sponsored by the Miscellaneous Subjects Committee, was passed last week on a 43-0 vote.

Until voters last year approved a constitutional change, one legislature could not bind a later one to expenditures. And state law said the money for an entire capital construction project had to be set aside before it was initiated.

The legislature's Appropriations Committee has mapped a three-year capital construction program with partial first year funding. The concept is based on the LB547 enactment.

Gas Distribution Rules Proposed

By The Associated Press

Gasoline producers and distributors would be prohibited from discriminating against independent service stations under terms of a bill introduced in the legislature Wednesday.

The measure provides that if and when fuel shortages develop, a producer who in the past has supplied fuel to independent firms as well as its own outlets would be required to apportion the fuels to both groups in the same proportion that they had previously been supplied.

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff indicated the bill responds to prospects some independent firms will be put out of business by refusal of major brand suppliers to provide them a product to sell.

The measure, LB587, was sponsored by the Miscellaneous Subjects Committee. Rules were suspended to place it on general file without a public hearing.

The bill permits injunctive relief in the courts and prescribes fines ranging from $1,000 to $10,000 for each separate violation and for each separate day of violation.

"Major oil companies today are in the position they always wanted to be in," said Carpenter. "They are a sole monopoly. They control not only the price but the supply and they divide it to their best interest and not to the interests of the public generally."

Aid To Amos Family OK'd

By Associated Press

The legislature Wednesday gave first round approval to a bill to provide financial aid to the family of slain state patrol trooper George Amos Jr.

Before advancing the bill, LB585, the legislature agreed to an amendment offered by Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue to raise from $10,000 to $15,000 the amount profited the family. Of that amount, $7,000 would go to Amos' widow, Delores, and the other $8,000 would be divided between trust funds for each of the Amos' two children for college educations.

Amos was killed April 20 after he stopped a car on Interstate 80 near Lexington. Two persons have been charged with murder in the case.

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha suggested the bill be amended to provide similar assistance to families of all state employees killed in the line of duty. The bill's sponsor, Sen. Wally Barnett, said he favored such an amendment, but said he didn't know if it could be offered to LB585.

Teller For Development Of New Energy Sources

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

Nuclear scientist Edward Teller told a Nebraska audience here Wednesday that the world will be faced with a serious energy crisis within 10 years "unless we do something about it."

And, although he said nuclear reactors must play a major role, other new sources of energy must also be developed.

Teller, who played a key role in development of the first hydrogen bomb, was in Lincoln to speak at a luncheon sponsored by Gov. J. James Exon.

Some 300 guests from around the state attended.

Big Problem

"The energy problem is a big one," said Teller. "In good part it must be handled out of Washington."

But he also said local and state governments are in the best positions to identify their own needs.

"I strongly advocate a sharing of authority in the name of progress," said Teller, now a professor of physics at the University of California.

Teller began his talk by noting that the world's supply of oil is finite.

New Yardstick

He said he has created a new tool of measurement for describing oil resources—the A-unit.

"An A-unit is the total reserves the Arabs have," he said. "The known reserves in the rest of the world amount to half an A-unit."

And the yet-to-be discovered reserves total not much more than one A-unit, said Teller.

"We must look for other energy sources," he said. "Among these, the most obvious is the nuclear reactor."

Objections 'Nonsense'

Teller dismissed as "nonsense" most environmentalists' objections to nuclear reactors.

He said thermal pollution is no problem, radiation emitted is not dangerous and waste storage and disposal can be accomplished safely.

Teller said the new chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, Dixy Lee Ray, had assured him that warm water emissions from nuclear plants pose no problems for aquatic life.

"She tells me fish are much more adaptable than environmentalists," said Teller of Dr. Ray, who he called a "fish scientist."

"I hope in her you will find an ally when you try to put your two good reactors on the line," said Teller, referring to two nuclear plants nearing completion on the Missouri River in Nebraska.

Worried About Mishaps

But Teller said he does share the concern of the ecologists for the potential danger associated with accidents at nuclear plants.

"Aside from the human suffering," he said, the reaction might be to "shut down all nuclear reactors."

In the history of industrialization, said Teller, the common practice has been to let accidents happen and then correct the problems.

"In nuclear energy, the word is 'never,'" he said. "We can and we must live up to it."

In other comments, Teller said

Kreuscher Unhappy With Butz Statement

HOLDREGE, Neb. (AP)—Holdrege businessman M. C. Strong was installed Tuesday night as president of the South Platte United Chambers of Commerce.

About 175 persons attended the Holdrege session, at which Nebraska Agriculture Director Glenn Kreuscher was the principal speaker.

Bob Harris of Hastings, public relations director for the Kansas Nebraska Natural Gas Co., moved in as vice president.

Kreuscher said Butz apparently "fails to realize that America has experienced and is experiencing the greatest transportation crisis ever realized."

Kreuscher said inability of grain to leave elevators to fill commitments around the world is a costly business. He said interest money paid by elevator and extra charges collected on contracts not completed "funnel back to the farmer, who is faced with a non-existent grain market" or discount prices.

Kreuscher declared "It's too bad the Washington Post doesn't have a farm editor who would ask why the Russian wheat sale cost the taxpayers more than $300 million in subsidies, while farmers sold their grain at bargain prices, while at the time USDA representatives were being told by the Australian and Canadian wheat boards that a better deal could be made for cash because America had the only major supply available."

Kreuscher said excess production under present farm policies most likely mean "farmers selling for prices below cost of production, or disaster with a crop failure."

Kreuscher took U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz to task for a statement that American agricultural "has reached the promised land."

York College Donations Top $20,000

YORK (AP)—H. R. Gibson of Dallas, Tex., last fall told York College he would match any funds they could collect on a two-to-one basis. Since then students have collected $20,892.51.

To keep his promise Gibson Wednesday turned over $41,785.02 to the school.

Gibson's offer continues until December.

The money is primarily for construction purposes in line with the school's expansion program. To raise their share, students used a letter-writing campaign asking donations of friends and relatives. That raised about $17,000 of the money.

The remainder came through sales of candy, a "slave sale," and donations from campus clubs.

Approximately $2,000 was raised by skipping two meals per month in the cafeteria and giving the money saved to the school.

Gibson is the founder of Gibson Discount Stores.

He also has offered incentive prizes including trips to Acapulco to students who raise the lost money.

Gibson is a member of the school's board of trustees.

He was in York Wednesday to attend the college's lecture series.

Retired NU Professor Of Dairy Science Dies

Funeral services are pending for Dr. Mogens Plum, 70, a retired University of Nebraska professor of dairy science, who died Tuesday night in North Platte following an apparent heart attack.

Dr. Plum was stricken after delivering a personal tribute to Myron Rumery, NU North Platte station staff member, at a testimonial dinner honoring Rumery.

Dr. Plum, a native of Copenhagen, Denmark, retired from NU in 1971. He joined the staff in 1949 and is credited with making significant research contributions to the dairy industry, especially in breeding methods for improving milk production according to the news service of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

Dr. Plum held degrees from the Royal Veterinary and Agricultural College in Copenhagen, Michigan State and Iowa State Universities. He was active in Sigma Xi, scientific honorary, American Dairy Science Association, American Society of Animal Sciences, American Genetic Association and Gamma Sigma Delta, agricultural honorary.

Dr. Plum is survived by his wife, Dorothea, daughters, Mrs. Susanne Jordan of Greensboro, N.C., Mrs. William (Margaret) Ahlschwede of Lincoln, and a son, David, of Kansas City, Mo.

Nebraska Junior Miss In Mobile

participating in the 16th annual Junior Miss competition. A total of $53,000 in college scholarships and other awards will be presented throughout the week, topped by a $10,000 scholarship to the new America's Junior Miss to be named during the national television finals Friday night.

Omaha Wives Of MIAs Launch Letter Campaign

OMAHA (AP)—Three Omaha MIA wives, who say their patience "is wearing thin," have launched a letter-writing campaign to gather information about men listed as missing in action from North Vietnamese and Red Cross officials.

Mrs. Clifton E. Cushman, whose husband has been missing in Southeast Asia since 1966, said she doesn't believe the North Vietnamese have released all American prisoners.

"We know they have not accounted for all of our men about whom they have information," she said. She also said North Vietnam has not let Red Cross representatives into North Vietnam to look for men or to inspect prisoners where prisoners of war were held.

She made her comments at a news conference held jointly with Mrs. Robert L. Standerwick and Mrs. Michael J. Bosiljevac at the Omaha Press Club.

The three women returned from a weekend conference in Chicago with other Midwest MIA wives and family members.

They said they learned that returned prisoners provided information about fewer than 100 of the men still missing in action. Listed as missing are 1,347 military and 25 civilian personnel.

The women displayed samples of posters to be distributed throughout Nebraska. Each shows a Nebraskan missing in action.

The women urged that letters urging cooperation in accounting for missing men be written to Ton Duc Thang, president of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam (DRV) in Hanoi; Premier Pham Van Dong of DRV, Hanoi, and to the Red Cross presidents in North Vietnam, South Vietnam, Canada, Poland, Hungary and Indonesia.

Mrs. Cushman said that the North Vietnamese government is very concerned with public opinion, and might be influenced by a letter writing campaign.

She said that some men might still be held prisoner so that the North Vietnamese can use them for negotiation purposes.

She also said that "If the record keeping of the North Vietnamese is as accurate as we have been led to believe," they must know what has become of many of the missing men.

"We know the odds are high that many or most of the missing have died, but we don't know. We're not giving up."

Millions May Be Lost By Omaha

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—The specter of the loss of millions of dollars in federal matching funds hung over Omaha Wednesday as the result of a City Council decision not to accept a master plan for transportation presented by the Metropolitan Area Planning Agency (MAPA).

The Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) said such projects as the extension of the North Freeway to Lake street, south 84th street tunnel congestion relief and the widening of Abbott Drive could be in jeopardy.

Even though the seven councilmen appeared to agree with demands for significantly greater master plan emphasis on mass transit improvement, Metro Area Transit (MAT) also could lose federal money, it was reported.

MAT is preparing to apply $2 million in Department of Transportation grants for new buses and other capital improvements in the next two years.

Officials estimated that upwards of $10 million in highway funds might be lost in the next two years.

Ray Hogrefe, FHWA Nebraska division engineer, said if existing DOT procedures are not changed, the prospect for federal funding of transportation projects in Omaha in the fiscal year beginning July 1 "is rather discouraging."

He conceded, however, that it is possible DOT leaders in Washington could decide to permit Omaha and other cities with similar problems in developing transportation plans to move ahead "with the few acceptable projects—those to which there "are not strong expressions of opposition."

DOT has given the Omaha metropolitan area until June 30 to present a satisfactory transportation plan. This was a one-year extension from the original deadline. The agency has said that unless an acceptable plan is devised it will cut off matching funds for transportation projects—a step already taken in several Ohio cities.

New Bank To Open In Elm Creek

ELM CREEK, Neb. (AP)—A new national bank will open here in the near future and occupy the same building formerly used by the Elm Creek State Bank. The State Bank has closed.

Bruce Lauritzen of Omaha, representing Omaha stockholders in the new bank, reported Wednesday that a charter was granted earlier this week by the federal Comptroller of Currency in Washington for the First National Bank of Elm Creek.

Stock issued by the bank and other assets will total $250,000, it was reported.

Other stock holders include John Lauritzen, Darrell Green, Joseph Latoza and Raymond PXAPE, Jr., all of Omaha.

Lauritzen said the bank could open as early as next Monday. He said many former employees of the Elm Creek bank would be hired.

More Than 125 4-H'ers To Get Camp Training

Halsey — More than 125 Nebraska 4-H Club members 16 years of age or older will be attending the 12th annual 4-H Camp Counselor training session at the Nebraska State 4-H Camp here May 23-26.

According to Dr. John D. Orr, associate state 4-H and YMW leader at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, the 1973 training session will focus on skills needed by the volunteer camp counselors, who will work with over 12,000 Four-H campers expected to attend some 150 camp sessions across the state.

Participants will receive training in counseling techniques from Dr. Gail B. Dunning, Carole Kimberlin and Phil Blakely of the NU Counseling Center, recreation from Mrs. Lyle Rainforth of Wood River; handicrafts from a representative of Tandy Leather Co. and Dr. Glen Krohn, State 4-H staff; ceremonies from Nola Peart Australia, and camping philosophy from Krohn.

Members of the camp counseling staff for the Nebraska State 4-H Camping Program will also be taking part in the activities. These 4-H'ers will serve as paid members of the camp staff this summer and will work at the State 4-H Camp, as well as district camps across the state.

The camp staff members include Julie Moravec, David City; Carol Olsen, Bushnell, David Wright, York; Sheila Johnson, Mead; Connie Bauer, Colon; Nancy Seilin, Norfolk and Lynn De Krecklow of Beatrice. Camp crew members on the cooking and counseling staff are Pam Warholoski of David City and Mary Ann Sward of Beatrice.

Nun Found Guilty Of Shoplifting

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—A woman who said she was a Columbus, Neb., nun, has been found guilty of stealing six chocolate Easter bunnies, a pair of slippers and a tube of Chapstick from a store.

Sister Loretta Stefack, 53, was arrested March 31 when a security guard and another employee of the Montgomery Ward Store saw her take the items in her pockets and a shopping bag. They said she left without paying.

Sister Stefack appeared before Judge Elizabeth Pittman and was represented by attorney J. William Gallup.

Gallup did not challenge the police report and therefore witnesses were not required to testify.

Judge Pittman referred the nun to the court probation officer for a pre-sentence investigation.

Informing Nebraskans Is Aim Of New Nutrition Organization

The improvement of food and nutrition practices of all Nebraskans is the main thrust of a newly formed organization called the Nebraska Nutrition Council.

According to Harriet Kohn, Extension specialist in expanded nutrition at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and one of the originators of the council, "people in Nebraska have many nutrition problems."

Mrs. Kohn believes that the council can provide Nebraskans with better food and nutrition information that will "help them make wiser choices."

According to the NU nutrition specialist any time individuals and agencies interested in improving nutrition can coordinate their efforts and resources "much good can be done."

The Nebraska Nutrition Council hopes to serve as a coordinating body for nutrition education, activities and programs throughout the state. During the next year, council members plan to develop and maintain a directory of available nutrition programs and services.

Harold McGrew, director of the Nebraska food Stamp Program, is currently president of the new organization. McGrew maintains that although food and nutrition education is not new in Nebraska, the council's approach is, "It's a different attempt at getting the job done through a coordination of all resources."

In addition to McGrew, other officers for the council include Mrs. Kohn, vice president, Lois Kiestner, consumer consultant for the Nebraska State Department of Agriculture, secretary and Nancy Gerner, executive director for the Dairy Council of the Central States, treasurer.

Membership in the council is open to individuals as well as groups and businesses involved in food and nutrition, health or consumer education work.

The council will hold an open meeting in Lincoln Aug. 27 for anyone interested in learning more about the organization.

State Milksheds Get High Scores

A federal survey of two Nebraska milksheds has resulted in high certification scores for the Nebraska milk program administered by the State Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Dairies and Foods, according to Agriculture Director Glenn Kreuscher.

Kreuscher said, "Federal survey officers have informed me the Laurel milkshed passed with a 97% rating and the Norfolk facility received a 94% certification.

"Both ratings were higher than previous federal inspections, which indicates the result of the increased educational programs being conducted by the Bureau of Dairy and Foods," said Kreuscher. "City health departments complaining about the high cost to their community for milk programs have the option of letting the State Department of Agriculture conduct inspections of the milk program without any additional costs to the city. In the case of the Lincoln Health Department, this decision could result in an estimated $40,000 per year savings to Lincoln taxpayers," Kreuscher said.

Kreuscher said the savings to the state in running the milk program result from having only one administration cost for all milk programs and an additional benefit from being able to use inspectors on a statewide basis rather than being limited to city milkshed boundaries.

Other savings result from the use of the state laboratory, which is well equipped to do extensive testing not possible in all of the city laboratories.

Kreuscher said that a 1972 audit of the program showed all four cities having to use extra city funds to operate their milk program.

Eastern Star Elects Two Grand Leaders

Mrs. Charles Berry of Takamah and the Rev. Charles Kurtz of West Point Wednesday were elected Worthy Grand Matron and Worthy Grand Patron, respectively, of the Grand Chapter of the Order of Eastern Star (OES) of Nebraska.

Other officers elected Wednesday include Mrs. Terry Bowman of Omaha, associate grand matron; Dr. William Beckenhauer of Lincoln, associate grand patron; Mrs. Wilma Harris of Omaha, grand secretary; Mrs. Donald Perkins of Norfolk, grand conductress; and Mrs. David Jones of Stapleton, associate grand conductress.

The grand treasurer and grand trustee will be elected at the Thursday session.

Also on the agenda Thursday of the 98th session of the order are scholastic awards and the Jane C. Thompson Memorial awards as well as recognition of 50-year members.

Climaxing the three day meeting, which attracted some 2,000 persons from around the state, will be the installation of officers Thursday night.

Jurgens President Of Dentistry Group

Dr. Roger Jurgens of Lincoln, who teaches at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln College of Dentistry, has been elected president of the Nebraska Society of Dentistry for Children.

Other officers include Dr. Russell Davis of Grand Island, president-elect; Dr. Robert Hinrichs of Lincoln, secretary-treasurer; and Dr. Roger Gausman and Dr. Gerald Gamar, both of Omaha and both board members.

AFL-CIO Leaders Promise $1.6 Million To Aid Chavez

WASHINGTON (AP) — AFL-CIO leaders promised Cesar Chavez $1.6 million Thursday to aid his union's fight with the Teamsters for control of California's farm workers.

"We will fight, not for Chavez, not for union, but for the farm workers," declared AFL-CIO president George Meany.

Meany told a news conference the money would be paid out over the next three months to coordinate an effective strike against California table grape growers by Chavez's United Farm Workers, AFL-CIO.

Until recently the UFW had about 90 per cent of the state's table grape workers under contract. But this spring the independent Teamsters union signed contracts with growers in the Coachella and San Joaquin valleys, covering about 15,000 field hands who formerly were UFW members.

Meany called this "one of the most vicious, union-busting efforts we have ever seen," and pledged to do "whatever is necessary" to keep the UFW alive.

The UFW has no strike fund and is one of the smallest and poorest unions in the AFL-CIO. Chavez has called the grape fight crucial to his union's survival and said it threatened to wipe out eight years of organizing efforts.

Following Meany's news conference, Chavez said he would press a strike in the Coachella Valley in two weeks when the harvest season begins. The money from the AFL-CIO will be used to pay strike benefits to an estimated 5,000 workers, including many under Teamster contracts whom Chavez said he hoped would join the walkout. The labor leader also said he was still opposed to bringing farm workers under the National Labor Relations Board Act because it would strip him of his most potent weapon, the boycott. Teamsters President Frank Fitzsimmons also has rejected representational elections under the NLRB because his union had already signed contracts.

An AFL-CIO spokesman said all 13.6 million federation members would be assessed four cents per month for three months to pay for the UFW aid.

Study Of Correctional Needs Could Begin In Three Weeks

A comprehensive study of correctional facility and program needs in Lancaster County could possibly begin in three weeks, the Region II Crime Commission was told Wednesday.

Bob Harrison of the State Crime Commission said that the request for the study has been received by the University of Illinois, which is under contract with the federal government to conduct studies of this type.

In other action the commission named Roger Larson of KFOR Radio as chairman of the commission to replace Thomas Pansing. Larson had been vice

Scottsbluff Gets Grant For Park

WASHINGTON (AP) — Scottsbluff has been awarded a federal grant of $35,000 to acquire more than seven acres of land for a neighborhood park, according to Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb.

The grant will be matched with $35,000 local funds. Future developments will include a swimming pool, tennis courts and a multi purpose area.

The site planned for the park is north of the senior high school in the northern part of the city. The City Park Board has interviewed several architects for pool design and is expected to make a recommendation to the City Council next week, according to City Manager Frank Koehler.

Head Of UNL Examinations Service Retiring After 34 Years

A man who has had a major impact on Nebraska students through a variety of testing services is retiring after 34 years as director of the Examinations Service at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

He is Prof. Henry Miot Cox, who came to Nebraska in 1939 by invitation to assist in establishing a bureau of Instructional Research, now called the Examinations Service.

Friends and colleagues will honor Cox at a reception May 10 at 3 p.m. in the Nebraska Union.

Cox is probably best known across the state for his work in connection with the Regents' Examinations.

City Right To Property Challenged By Lawsuit

A suit challenging the City of Lincoln's right to acquire property for the proposed City Services Building through eminent domain proceedings was filed Wednesday in Lancaster District Court.

The suit was filed by Ira D. Beynon, a Lincoln attorney who is the court-appointed guardian for John Donald McDonald identified in the suit as an incompetent.

The suit seeks court action to block the city from taking land belonging to McDonald through eminent domain proceedings on the ground that the action would violate the Nebraska constitution.

According to the suit, the state constitution allows land to be condemned for public use. The suit alleges that the City Services Building would be used in part by private individuals according

Graduate Faculty Okays New Grad College Rules

The graduate faculty of all campuses of the University of Nebraska has voted to adopt and to recommend for approval to the Board of Regents new rules and regulations relating to the government of the system-wide Graduate College.

Ballots recently counted by a subcommittee of the graduate council indicated substantial approval of a document which verifies the policy of a single graduate program for the University of Nebraska administered by the vice president for graduate studies and research who is also designated

Patrol Arrests Escapee Long

An escapee from the Men's Reformatory was arrested shortly before 7 p.m. Wednesday in Beaver Crossing according to the State Patrol.

Jim Lyons records department supervision at the penal complex said Billy Ray Long 21 disappeared from the livestock feed preparation room at the reformatory about 2:15 p.m.

Long is serving a one-year sentence from Lancaster County for stealing an auto and a current two-year sentence from York County for forgery.

Examinations for high school students. These tests provide the basis for awarding Regents' scholarships.

When he joined NU the new office inherited a testing program from the Extension Division, which was then developed into a full program of guidance and placement exams.

This office is credited with introduction of the 9-point grading scale at the university. Cox said it was first applied to the guidance exams, then was adopted by the faculty in 1946. The grading scale with minor variations is still in use at the University.

In more recent years, Cox was given responsibility for installing the tabulating equipment for registration and records. He said the system was a forerunner of the computer system now used for registration.

In addition to providing testing services for entering and undergraduate students, his office also has done considerable work with entrance examinations for graduate and professional education.

Math Director
During the past three years, Cox has served as an executive director of the Annual High School Mathematics Examinations on a part-time basis. He said this contest operates in 50 states and some Canadian provinces. Some states give scholarships to contest winners and others give awards. He will continue as executive director of the project following his retirement from the university.

A graduate of Emory University in Atlanta, Ga., Cox taught for one year at Emory Academy, now Oxford College in Oxford, Ga. He later became a graduate assistant in mathematics at Duke University and received a master's degree.

He also taught at Georgia Tech, did graduate work in mathematics at Princeton, and taught at the University of Georgia, where he became assistant examiner of the university system.

His wife is the former Mary Claire Oliver. The couple has one daughter, Mrs. John Hale of Atlanta, Ga., and three grandsons.

"My wife and I have enjoyed our years in Lincoln," Cox said. "We've formed many lasting friendships through church, service clubs and the university."

Bids Again Topic Of Manor Board

... Questions Raised

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Low bids, single bids and specifications for bids on draperies, bedspreads and other equipment for Lancaster Manor were again the topic of discussion as the Lancaster Manor advisory board studied the bids for making a recommendation to the county commissioners.

They agreed to recommend acceptance of the low bid of Arnold Wells for draperies providing the note enclosed by Wells with the bid meant that his bid of $10,565 included everything.

According to Manor Administrator Jerry Gibson, the note indicated allowance of extra inches bracket-to-bracket for the drapes and it was uncertain if this addition would mean an added cost.

Check Requested
The board directed Gibson and the building and grounds committee of the board to check on the matter and if the price did include this to recommend that bid to the board.

Other bidders and their bids were Brandeis, $11,059; Mid-Line Industries, $12,580; Martin Draperies, $13,061; and Hamlin Draperies, $14,646.

It was noted that the county commissioners at their Tuesday board meeting had rejected the bid of Penney's since the required certified check didn't accompany the bid.

After considerable discussion, the board unanimously agreed to recommend that the commissioners accept the single bid received for nursing equipment as well as the one valid bid received for linens.

Gibson urged the board to recommend that the commissioners extend the bidding one more week or reject the bids and bid the items again since only one bid was received on the new equipment.

Problems Noted
However, board members indicated that they felt there could be many problems with extending the time when the one bidder had the bid submitted on time and others had had equal opportunity to do so.

Gibson further noted that a second bid on the new equipment had been brought in to the commissioners' office but was rejected because it was late.

He said he felt this was unfortunate and that it would be better to have more than one bid to consider.

However, the board members disagreed and recommended acceptance of the bid of $5,667 submitted by Mid-Line Industries for new equipment as well as the firm's bid on linens, which was $5,637.

A second bid submitted by Penney's on the linens but which did not include all items had been rejected by the commissioners Tuesday since it, too, failed to include a certified check.

In other business, Gibson announced that the second phase of construction should be completed by May 31 with plans to begin moving into that area by June 15.

He also announced that in conjunction with Nebraska Nursing Home Week, the first 25 completing the aide training course at the Manor will be graduated in ceremonies at the City Council Chambers in the County-City Building at 7 p.m., May 15.

He also issued an invitation for all interested persons in the county to visit Lancaster Manor during the next week.

Ms. Harris Lashes Non-Indian Problem

By JIM DeCAMP
Star Staff Writer

There is no Indian problem in the United States today. What we have is a non-Indian problem, according to LaDonna Harris, wife of Sen. Fred Harris (D-Okla.).

Speaking at a meeting of the League of Women Voters Wednesday night Ms. Harris said that the problems confronting Indians today have been caused by their treatment by non-Indians.

Through a denial of education, medical treatment and other services promised in treaties the non-Indians have kept the Indians a subjugated people. Ms. Harris, a member of the Comanche tribe, told the group that there are over 300 separate tribes across the country each with different languages, life styles and cultures.

She said that although the Indians are a very diverse people, they are still a movement.

Pointing out that Indians are able to organize across tribal lines and work with and for one another Ms. Harris told the group that this is an indication of a great people.

She said that the Indians are the highest and lowest in nearly every socio-economic category. They have the highest infant mortality rate, suicide rate and arrest rate and the lowest educational level and shortest life expectancy.

Nearly all of the programs for self improvement have not come from educators or social workers, she said, but from the Indian people themselves.

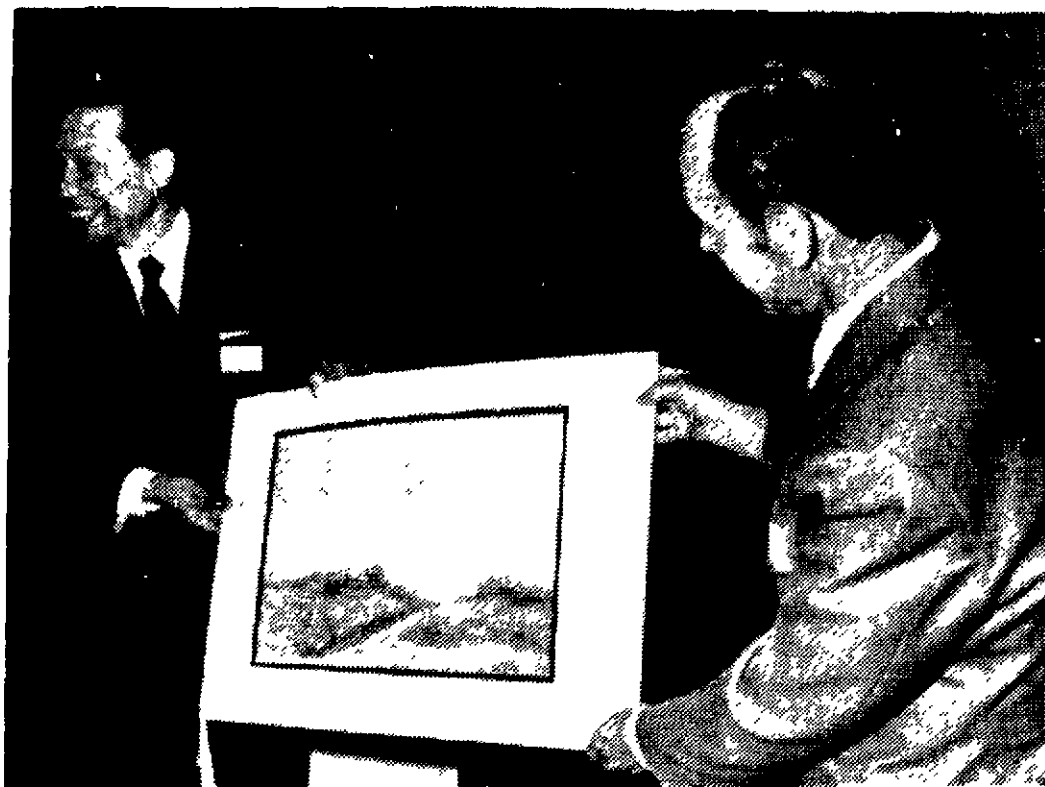

Ms. Harris said that in the past whole tribes were exterminated by the government or by settlers and this extermination hasn't really stopped. It has just taken a different form.

During a federal program called "termination," she said that tribes are being cut off from the services promised them in treaties.

Though termination is supposed to be a voluntary action voted on by the members of the tribe, the tribes are often coerced into agreeing to termination.

Pointing to the termination of one tribe in Wisconsin Ms. Harris said the tribe had received a judgment against the government, but were told that they would not receive their money unless they agreed to termination.

The tribe has since applied for readmission to its former status.

Vaccines Are Bound For Japan

A painting by Lincoln artist Hilda Larson and a lot of animal medicine will soon be traveling to Japan as a result of a joint venture between Norden Laboratories of Lincoln and Nippon Zenyaku Kogyo Ltd of Japan.

The painting of a Nebraska farm scene will hang in the offices of the Japanese firm.

The vaccines and other livestock pharmaceutical products will be distributed by the Japanese firm in Japan and throughout Southeast Asia.

"We will start with about 20 products this year and I expect we will add about 20 more each year. They will be distributing both large and small animal products," said Dave Jones, sales manager for Norden.

Jones predicted that the Japanese market will eventually consume half of Norden's production of the specific products that are covered in the agreement.

Sadakazu Fukui, president of the Japanese firm, said that the two firms manufactured products that complemented each other's lines.

One of the first products to be marketed in Japan is the new calf scour vaccine developed at the University of Nebraska.

A miniature United Nations type of translating system is being used at the Norden plant in Lincoln to train sixteen Japanese salesmen and company officers in sales techniques used by the American company and to make them familiar with the American products.

"We started by working with the interpreters for a week so they are able to understand the terms. There are some terms we use that just don't translate to Japanese, but it really has been easier than we expected it to be," said J. W. Owen, training director for Norden.

Locomotive Purchase OK'd

By SAM THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau
Seward — The Great Plains Railway Co. board of directors voted here Wednesday night to purchase two 1,000 horsepower locomotives, pending Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) operating approval of the group's acquisition of the Seward to Superior Rail Line from the Chicago and North Western (C&NW) railroad.

That approval is expected within a week after C&NW sends the completed purchase agreement, said Great Plains counsel Dick Peterson of Lincoln. The purchase agreement is expected "any day."

Separate ICC approval for the newly-formed railroad company's sale of stock is also expected within the next two weeks.

Craig Burroughs, president of the East Camden and Highlands

Railroad of Camden, Ark., who will manage the Seward-Superior line for Great Plains, suggested that the company should headquarter in Seward.

"The two industries which we will be able to serve directly and upon which we will be depending for our non-cyclical, non-agricultural business are here in Seward," Burroughs said. Those two industries are Hughes Brothers, manufacturers of wooden power transmission crossbars, and the yet-uncompleted Walker muffler plant.

Great Plains president Robert Steinheider said the local operation will be a financial boon to the area when it is ultimately able to get boxcars from the Santa Fe, Missouri Pacific, Burlington Northern and Union Pacific railroads to haul grain out of the area.

Steinheider noted that his own elevator in Goehner has been unable to sell some corn and milo orders for lack of boxcars.

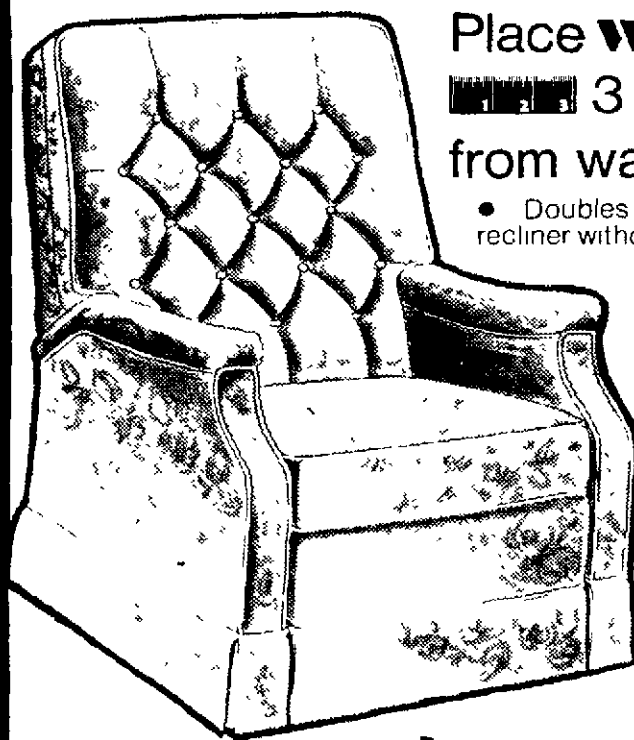

"If we don't get this railroad going, I can see a 10 to 15% drop in the economics of this area," he said. "No elevator is in a bad condition yet, only because the market has been with us."

Steinheider said he has a stack of letters from people who want to order stock. "Farmers are waking up to the fact that we need a railroad," he said.

Availability of fuel for the line should be no problem, given the area's economic need for a railroad, Steinheider said.

First order of business after ICC approval and capitalization will be replacement of a washed-out bridge over the Little Blue at Oak. Burroughs said he would pay the expense of bringing a bridge engineer from his Arkansas line to access the situation.

Colin And Mayor Shout About Parking

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

A County-City Building Committee discussion on the parking situation at the building erupted into a shouting match between Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf and County Board Chairman Robert Colin, Sr., Wednesday.

At issue was the parking of Lincoln Police Department cruisers along the north wall of the building.

Colin said he did not like the vehicles taking up spaces in the one-hour public parking lot.

Where upon Mayor Schwartzkopf barked, "I don't give a damn whether you like it or not—those police cars are going to stay there."

Colin countered, "I don't care what you say—I still don't like it."

"You're not worrying about the public by letting those cars park there," he charged.

"They're going to stay," the mayor declared, adding, "They're serving a purpose."

A check of the north parking lot showed there are 22 parking stalls adjacent to the north side of the building.

An unofficial count late Wednesday afternoon showed that 17 police vehicles were parked in those stalls, with several other police cruisers parked in other areas of the one-hour parking lot.

Immediately outside the police department's main entrance on 9th, there are nine stalls assigned to the police department.

Colin said the city "could very well park those cars someplace else."

"Here we are squabbling like a bunch of kids," the mayor commented.

The confrontation between the two top local officials was precipitated by County Commissioner Jan Gauger's suggestion that the committee eliminate the assigned parking places for city and county officials in the south parking lot.

Commenting, "I guess I have a conflict of interest on this," Mrs. Gauger noted that she had given up her parking slot to County Judge Jeff Cheuvront. As a result, she has to park in the one-hour lot "where I get two tickets a day."

She charged that on some days "there are as many as 16 or 17 vacant spaces out there."

City Councilwoman Helen Boosalis agreed that the proposal should be tried on a trial basis.

However, Commissioner Kenneth Bourne objected to the plan, saying he thought the committee should study the matter for another month.

In between the flap between the mayor and Colin, the committee agreed to a compromise plan whereby the county will still delegate places for 24 stalls fronting the south wall of the building. The remaining 75 slots will be unassigned.

Mayor Schwartzkopf cast the lone dissenting vote on the compromise plan.

In other business the committee approved a remodeling project in the Lincoln Police Department to beef up security inside the department.

Committee action on the proposal came only after the group had adjourned and was reminded by the press that the committee had taken no action on the motion.

Lt. Eugene Armstead listed a number of projects to improve security, such as installing bullet proof glass in the front windows and in the communications room.

The officer noted that the project originally was estimated to cost between $8,000 and $10,000. However, he said that the only bid received—from George Cook—totaled $21,472.

The remodeling will be totally federally funded.

Colin urged the committee to delay action on the request until the completion of a study to be conducted by the University of Illinois. The study, which will be totally federally funded, will

Budget Of $1.07 Million OK'd By Library Board

The Library Board Wednesday recommended approval of a $1.07 million budget for fiscal 1973-74.

The budget now travels to the mayor and City Council for final approval.

Library Director Charles Dalrymple reported that the $1,072,615 requested budget represents an increase of $109,664 over the 1972-73 approved budget.

Dalrymple explained that much of the increase is taken up by salaries. He said he has calculated that city employees center on the correctional facilities and rehabilitative program needs of Lincoln and Lancaster County.

Colin said, "I can't see spending a dime (on the remodeling) until we get the outcome of this study."

However, Councilman Steve Cook said, "I'd hate to see some officer get killed because we're waiting for some study. We've talked about this for at least a year and a half."

In other action the committee decided to study further a proposal outlined by Lincoln Telephone officials for a complete revamping of the building's phone system through installation of a "Centrex" system.

could receive a 5 to 5.5% wage hike this year.

Wages for library employees represents more than half the proposed budget, at $549,385.

Additionally, $191,300 is being budgeted for the purchase of books, periodicals, records and films. Another $41,290 is budgeted for furniture, fixtures and equipment.

In other action, the board approved the Arnold Heights Improvement Association's plans to staff a public library in the area.

Dalrymple reported that the service, with the promised volunteer help, could be started in mid-June.

Metropolitan Lincoln Employment Increases

Employment increased during the period of February-March in Lincoln and Lancaster County, according to figures released by the Nebraska Division of Employment.

With an additional 1,250 workers, the Lincoln labor area now has a total employment figure of 89,400.

Unemployment was reduced by 400 for the period, dropping that total to 3,050, or 3.3% of the total work force. This was lower than the 3.7% for February 1973.

"Employment as a whole looks promising for the immediate future. Most industries are advancing and feel optimistic at this point, barring unforeseeable declines in the overall economic picture," a statement released by the division said.

Employment has risen during the past year by 3,400 workers.

All major employment categories, including agricultural, nonagricultural wage, salary workers, manufacturing, and nonmanufacturing increased their work forces.

The categories of insurance, finance and real estate declined in employment, as did transportation, communication and utilities. Government employment showed the greatest rise, particularly in the area of educational services.

Average weekly earnings of production workers in the Lincoln labor area showed a rise of $6.93 from February to March. The rise in earnings was due to an increase of 0.9 hours in working time and an advance in the average hourly pay scale of eight cents.

Compared to March 1972, the weekly earnings of production workers averaged $23.16 higher in the current month. Time worked per week increased 2.7 hours and the hourly rate of pay was 33 cents higher.

Never A Dull Moment In Suburbia

Scattered throughout the year are numerous days when we can express our love to the members of our family and friends. One of these very important days arrives next Sunday—Mother's Day. On Mother's Day, not only can we express our love but also our gratitude for all the things that mothers have done, and continues to do for us.

Then there are birthdays to celebrate during the year, and then give us excellent opportunities to prove how important our loved ones really are. On these special days we display our affections through gifts, flowers, cards and parties—which will be our "suburbia" topic today.

There was a double birthday celebration recently at the Maple Village home of Mr. and Mrs. Merle Scott.

It seems that Mr. and Mrs. Scott's two sons, Todd and Brian, shared honors on Friday, April 27, when Todd celebrated his fifth birthday and Brian was two-years-old.

The first birthday event took the form of a dinner on Friday evening, when several guests were present. They included the youngsters' grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Scott and Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Buckford, their godparents, Mr. and Mrs. Darrel Nunn of Malcolm, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Sleming of Weeping Water, and Mr. and Mrs. Mike Weekly.

On Saturday afternoon, Todd was again honored at a birthday party at the Scott home. Several of his friends were present to participate in the birthday fun, and the guests included Derrick Losgreen, Laura Dappen, Kristy Jensen, Lisa Lien-man, Timmy Christensen and Sammy and Monica Scott.

News also comes to us this morning from the Southbrook Summit home of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Allen, whose son Joe recently celebrated his birthday.

Joe's 12th anniversary on Tuesday, April 17, was observed by a family dinner in Omaha. Accompanying Mr. and Mrs. Allen and Joe to Omaha were the celebrant's brothers, Jim, Jon and Jeff, and his grandmother, Mrs. Edith Warren, of Kansas City, Mo., who was a guest at the Allen home from Sunday, April 15, until Sunday, April 22.

It's A Something — For — Everyone Show about the fashion show. It was a something-for-everyone show: the tall, the short, the chubby, the lean, and in categories that included styles for the youngest of junior citizens, to the oldest of the senior citizens.

And just in case you had other commitments and were unable to attend Wednesday's fashion showing, you may lunch and admire the fashions (modeled by Guild members) today and admire the beautiful — "The King and I" stage-setting which is the background for the delightful parade of fashions. You may purchase tickets at the door.

The Lincoln Legal Secretaries Association will hold its annual bosses night dinner at the Legionnaire Club on Thursday evening, May 10.

New officers will be installed following the 7 o'clock dinner, and the program will be presented by representatives of the Lincoln Community Playhouse.

Everything went according to schedule on Wednesday when the Lincoln Community Playhouse Guild presented the first of a two-day fashion showing for spring and summer, 1973.

The afternoon began with a box lunch which delighted the ticket holders. The boxes were decorated and ornamented and contained some delicious food.

But although the nearly sell-out audience at the Community Playhouse enjoyed its lunch, it was more than enthusiastic

TALK

Happy days are here again—weather wise—And at the end of some of those happy days are dancing nights—

Saturday night, for instance, will be a dining and dancing night for the members of the Holiday Club when they welcome the thought of no raindrops falling on their heads (with question mark, of course) when they have their spring party at the Lincoln Country Club.

The party planners include Mr. and Mrs. Ellery Davis, chairman. Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Faulkner, Dr. and Mrs. E. D. Zeman and Mr. and Mrs. Dick Reische.

It goes without saying that there are to be guests at the dinner dance and they include Judge and Mrs. T. C. White, Mrs. and Mrs. Noves Rogers, all of Columbus, Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Welton (Kay Duermyer) of Youngstown, N.Y., Mrs. James Pickering, Mrs. Eleanor Teal, Mrs. Ethelyn Hermanson, Mr. and Mrs. John Morrow, and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Lukart.

If the members of the Fifty Club have a speaking acquaintance and can butter-up the weather man they may have beautiful weather for their dinner dance next Tuesday evening.

We had thought that the Fifty Fifties had completed their around the world in 14 nights and two days tour, but apparently not. They are doing New Zealand when they dine and dance at the Elks Club, and the details of all of the festivity are in the hands of a committee composed of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Pinkerton, chairman, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Jorgensen, co-chairmen, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Bridges, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Nesseler, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Cotter and Mr. and Mrs. William Mann.

The activity around town isn't limited to dining and dancing, however. There is a celebration planned for next Sunday when Mrs. Ronald Namuth and her brother Kevin Fox will be a hostess and host at an open house.

The 3 o'clock-to-5 o'clock affair will honor Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Fox, the parents of Mrs. Namuth and Mr. Fox, who will be celebrating their 30th wedding anniversary which official it was on Tuesday, May 8.

The open house will be held at Hope Auditorium, 2015 So. 16th St.

BOOKS—"After Claude"

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Poor Harriet. She has a list of problems that would flummox even the most competent psychoanalyst. Her relationships with other people are at best fractured. She lives in mortal fear of her former best friend who she imagines is out to kill her. She has come to regard another of her long-time friends as an empty-headed housewife whom she describes as "the most adorably married woman in the Western Hemisphere." She feels at once threatened by and superior to virtually all other women—especially those who happen to be better-than-average looking.

And then there is the matter of Claude, her erstwhile French boyfriend who is in the process of trying to jilt her. When she is not loving him she is loathing him, and when not clinging she is busy trying to convince herself that she can do much better without him.

Add to all this the information that she is a psychopomp—that she possesses the original Big Mouth that she lives in New York City, and that she was blessed with the name of Harriet, and you have the makings for one miserable human being.

The preceding inventory hardly sounds like the basis for a humorous story, however in Miss Owens' new book "After Claude" Farrar Straus & Giroux, it becomes just that. "After Claude" is Miss Owens' first major novel, although she has published a number of books in Paris under the pseudonym Harriet. Could it be? Daimler.

The story line in Miss Owens' book is not all that exciting. It is in fact secondary to her character portrayal, which is done with a good deal of expertise.

Seen through the admittedly jaundiced eyes of Harriet, Claude is the prototypical Male Chauvinist Pig.

He could talk for hours, days, but only on carefully selected topics, such as every disapproving course of his most recent meal. But discourse? Converse? Exchange ideas? Never, and certainly not with the brain-damaged segment of the population called women.

Dear dear Claude, who regards his profile as a work of art transported across the ocean for the elevation of American females.

And Harriet herself, who despite her excesses, is at times fairly perceptive. "I have learned never to be amazed at what men will resort to when cornered by a woman's intelligence." She is even with all her foibles, a rather lovable character, and her dry, often cutting humor is never far from the surface. Believe me, it's no holiday for a woman of my refined tastes to discover she's living with a fool.

As she muddles through the disintegration of her relationship with Claude, Harriet is a good, albeit exaggerated, example of many of today's liberated women. Brought up in a more traditionalist era when women were expected to be docile and submissive, then taught in the maelstrom of the Women's Liberation Movement, she is a study in paradoxes. Openly contemptuous of her aforementioned married friend, it also appears that she harbors a good deal of covert envy toward her.

On the one hand she feels a compelling need to belong, to someone, some group, anything, yet on the other she feels she must be independent. Her love-hate relationship with Claude is symptomatic of her dilemma.

Her only resort is sarcasm, and she uses it on anyone who comes within firing range. Confronted with what she sees as an alien world, she must do something to defend herself, and although her wisecracks and behavior are humorous, they are also the reflection of a tragic figure.

During the past several years, many authors have written novels whose themes—or at least whose undertones—have been determined by the phenomenon described as "Women's Lib." Among these products, Miss Owens' book ranks far better than average. It is witty and perceptive, and the reader is spared the triteness of the usual drivel about middle-class women caught somewhere between the country club and the barricades.

If the author goes a bit overboard in trying to make her point, she may be forgiven, because to a great extent she has hit the target dead-center. There is in the end a lot to be said for a heroine who introspectively concludes that "It is ironic how my behavior is determined by the insanity that surrounds me." For having created that heroine, Miss Owens is to be commended.

ABBY: only you can decide

DEAR ABBY: My mother has been a very sick woman for a year and a half. Her doctor says she could last another year, or die tomorrow. Half the time she doesn't even know me.

My husband and I have put off taking any kind of vacation ever since mother's illness, and we really must get away. My question: Should we go? I'm afraid if we go, mother might die, and we'll have to turn around and rush home. I've asked our minister and he said we should go — but not too far. I've asked my mother-in-law, and she said we shouldn't go at all. My best friend, who's a registered nurse, said we should go and take our chances. The doctor refuses to give me a yes or no. My husband says it's up to me.

What do you say, Abby? HAVE A PROBLEM: DEAR ABBY: You have another problem: You want someone else to make the decision and accept the responsibility for it. So far you've polled the doctor, your minister, your mother-in-law, your best friend, your husband — and now me. Make your own decision, and accept full responsibility for it.

DEAR ABBY: I have been going around with this man for 6½ years. At one time we talked of marriage, but he asked that we postpone it because his mother was going through a divorce and he was quite upset about it.

Now he tells me he thinks he is also in love with someone he met at work. He says he has never gone out with her, but they've had coffee a few times.

I love this man and want to marry him, but I can't think clearly now. How do you figure this?

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: I figure that 6½ years is long enough for him to make up his mind about marrying you. And if he could fall in love with a girl he's only had coffee with a few times, I'd like to know what kind of coffee it was. Tell him to get lost before he tells you to, which is probably what he has in mind.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Answers To Your Beauty Questions

Josephine Lowman

Q I have an awkward walk. I am heavy on my feet. I just weigh 125 pounds. My sister only weighs 105 and she walks just the same way. How can we correct this? It is terribly unattractive.

A Does your weight go ahead of you or do you swing your legs forward in a stiff-legged manner, or do you toe out? Any one of these could cause the trouble.

When you walk, keep the weight of your body in balance and under control. Do not throw it ahead of you. Your knees should feel relaxed. Do not hyperextend your knees at the end of each step. Swing forward from the hips. Toes should point forward. Place one foot in front of the other so that the insides of the feet would touch an imaginary straight line. Try to make your walk smooth. Practice walking with a book balanced on the top of your head.

Q Please answer this in your column. Is bicycle riding good for general reducing?

A Yes, it increases your output of energy and burns up calories. It is good for your health, too.

Q I am going to begin wearing hats again. I haven't bought one for years and I used to love them. However, I must take care because I have a very large head and a round face. What shape would be best for me?

A You need some height in your hat. Stay away from any that are rounded at the top and be sure that the hat is wide enough.

Q I have a son who is 14 years old. He has dandruff and sores along the edge of his hairline. What can you suggest?

A You should have him see a physician, and perhaps a skin specialist. This is too severe a case for me to advise you. It calls for medical attention.

When playing a guitar, don't Play Like A Baby with a 1-finger pick. Let us show you how to play with 5 fingers. It is actually easier! And you won't need other instrument accompaniment. Learn Correctly. It costs no more.

Opening lead - king of diamonds.

"What can defeat me?" is a dominant theme in the play of many hands. Here is a striking example of how the principle is applied.

South got to four spades and West led the king of diamonds. Declarer covered with the ace, ruffed by East, and East returned a club, won by South with the ace.

After drawing two rounds of trumps, South played a low heart to dummy's queen, hoping to find West with the king. In that case, South would have been able to discard one of dummy's clubs on the ace of hearts.

But the queen lost to the king and South had to go down one, losing a heart, a diamond, a diamond ruff and a club.

South would have made the contract had he applied the "What can defeat me?" principle. He should have ducked the king of diamonds lead, realizing that East was probably void of diamonds in the light of the bidding. He could then also afford to duck the queen, as well as the jack, if West persisted with the suit.

By ducking the first three leads, South would have preserved the ten winners he could see before him at the start of the hand. All he really had to do was recognize that he might go down by playing the diamond ace from dummy at trick one, and that he couldn't go down if he withheld the ace until it could be played at a more propitious moment later on.

Had he ducked the diamond lead, South's only losers would have been two diamonds and a heart, for he would have been able to ruff a heart later in dummy and discard his club loser on the ace of diamonds.

Use Of Strikebreakers Is Denied

Omaha (UPI) — Harold W. Andersen, president of the World Publishing Co., said Wednesday the Omaha World-Herald is not using professional strikebreakers to fill gaps left when member of Local 190 of the International Typographical Union (ITU) left their jobs last Friday.

His comment came after a

Elkhorn School Official Hopeful

ELKHORN (AP) — Elkhorn School Supt. Carl White said he has "guarded optimism" about chances for passage Tuesday of a $2.5 million bond issue.

White said about $1.1 million of the bonds would be issued immediately to purchase a site and build a new elementary school and to build a 12-14 room addition to the existing junior-senior high school.

Wednesday morning news conference at which Wayne Crisman, president of Local 190, said the union had been informed "by what we consider reliable sources that professional strikebreakers either have been, or are being imported for employment in the World-Herald composing room."

In a statement, Andersen said:

The rest of the bonds would be expected to be issued over the next seven years for a possible additional elementary building and the purchase of additional sites.

Woman Killed In Car Crash Near Osmond

Osmond (UPI) — A near head-on collision late Tuesday afternoon about 4 1/2 miles northeast of here claimed the life of a McLean woman and seriously injured two others.

State Patrolman Roy Van Winkle of Plainview said Mrs. Richard Hewitt, a passenger in a car driven by her husband, was killed when their car was in collision at the crest of a hill on a county road. The driver of the other car was Clarence Kuchler, 43, of Osmond.

Kuchler was hospitalized at Osmond and Hewitt was transferred to St. Luke's Hospital in Sioux City. Hewitt was in critical condition, Van Winkle said.

Telettransfer Savings

Money in-and-out by phone gives you daily-interest-earnings on a short-term checking account surplus or temporarily idle dollars!

FOR INDIVIDUALS...BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL PEOPLE...CORPORATIONS

Dollars lying in a checking account don't earn a penny for you! But now—with a single phone call—those dollars can work for you every day they're on deposit—for a week, a month, or longer! They'll earn a generous 5% per annum, compounded continuously (a 5.127% effective annual yield) from the day of deposit to the day of withdrawal—in a Telettransfer Savings Account at Commercial Federal! You can open your Telettransfer Savings Account any time—minimum balance $1,000... and then deposit or withdraw any time. Leave your money on deposit for one week or more—and earn interest for every day it's in your account. To collect every penny of interest your money has earned, just keep the account open through the end of the quarter—when the interest will be paid or credited.

DEPOSITS OVER $500,000 MUST BE APPROVED BY A SENIOR OFFICER

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS:

Suppose you have more money in your checking account than you really need at the moment—money you're holding for future taxes, stock purchases or other investments, paying bills or any other purpose. Or if you're responsible for funds of churches, fraternal organizations, businesses, estates, or trusts, put that money to work immediately at 5%—with a call!

Just stop in at any of our offices, and arrange for a Telettransfer Savings Account. Or, if you're too busy to come in, just call, and we'll arrange to set up the Account in your name or the name of your firm.

Complete Account information, safely stored in Commercial Federal's giant computer, will always be available to you... and you'll get a receipt for each transaction, plus a quarterly statement showing all transactions.

ADDING TO YOUR ACCOUNT:

Whenever you want to transfer money from your checking account to your Telettransfer Savings Account, you just pick up your phone, call Commercial Federal, and ask for "TELETRANSFER." Give your savings account number and a secret code which will be assigned to you alone. The Telettransfer teller will verify the information through the computer — and as of that moment, the money you're transferring to Commercial Federal will begin earning interest!

WITHDRAWING FROM YOUR ACCOUNT:

Suppose you need some of the money from your Telettransfer Account. Just phone the Telettransfer teller—give her your account number and secret code—and tell her how much you want transferred back to your checking account or sent direct to you (minimum $200). Either way, a check is issued and mailed that day.

IT'S SAFE!

Naturally, your savings are insured safe at Commercial Federal. And by using the safeguards of the account number and the secret code when you call—and through our refusal to mail any withdrawal check anywhere except to your bank or to you, at the address previously authorized by you—you're protected.

IT'S CONVENIENT... FLEXIBLE!

No trips to the bank or to Commercial Federal. Everything's handled by phone—in minutes. Saves time... saves going out in stormy weather... saves trouble... gets your money working sooner. Telettransfer enables you to earn daily interest on any money in your Telettransfer Savings Account for as short a period as one week!

Don't let a single day go by, with idle money lying in your checking account! Become a Telettransfer Savings Account customer now... and start earning daily interest! Call... write... come in to any of Commercial Federal's offices for complete details... and begin earning "daily rent" on your money immediately!

U.S. Cagers Defeated By Russian Club, 72-64

BALTIMORE (AP) — Coach Bob Cousy of the United States National basketball team credited the Russians with playing the best game of their six-game series against an emotionally drained American squad as the Soviets scored a 72-64 victory Wednesday night.

"By far, it was our worst game of the six," Cousy said. "We just ran out of gas."

"It was not entirely unexpected. All day, we were worrying about how to do a reasonable 'psych' job. That New York game (an 89-80 overtime victory Monday night) drained a lot of the guys emotionally."

The Russian players, who lost the series 4-2, left the Civic Center without showering and their coach, Vladimir Kandrashin, talked with newsmen for about one minute before departing.

"We won tonight," he said through an interpreter, "and even though we lost the series, it was a fine experience. Tonight, the only way I can explain it, we outplayed them."

Cousy credited the Russian players with executing their plays well and added: "I thought it was their best game of the tour. From the outset it was apparent we just didn't come to play."

Asked to explain the constant fouls and roughness of international play, Cousy replied: "I don't now how to explain it—and I'm not saying that facetiously. I've tried talking to the officials but it does absolutely no good."

Six Russians fouled out of the game, but the Soviets repeatedly stopped the Americans far out from the basket and prevented the open shots.

Under international rules, no free throws are attempted unless a player is fouled while shooting.

The Russians jumped in front 16-7 in the first seven minutes, led by as many as 10 points in the first half, and were ahead at intermission 40-36.

Alzhen Zharmukhamedov scored eight of his team-high 16 points early in the second half as the Russians went on top 55-42, with 14:35 remaining.

The Americans never got closer than seven points the rest

Leading 61-50, the Russians committed five consecutive fouls without the Americans ever attempting a shot. A few seconds later, UCLA's Swen Nater was

Baltimore Inks UNO Tackle

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—The Baltimore Colts of the National Football League announced Wednesday that they have signed University of Nebraska Omaha tackle Bill Kozel to a one-year contract.

Kozel was signed as a free agent following last Saturday's tryout camp in Baltimore.

Kozel, a three-year regular for the Mavericks, earned NAIA second team All-American honors last year. The 6-1, 240-pound Omaha Ryan graduate, was the only free agent signed by the Colts last weekend.

The Colts plan to try Kozel as a defensive linebacker when regular camp opens in July. Terms of the contract were not announced.

Nixon Says He'll Get To Bottom Of Scandal

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon told Republican campaign contributors
Wednesday night he will get to the bottom of the Watergate scandal and not let it keep him from making "the next four years."

Nixon addressed a $1,000-a-plate fund-raising dinner for the 1974 congressional campaign.
Planners said the turnout was far below what had been expected.

Nixon said he is keenly aware of concern among Republicans and the public in general about the Watergate developments but pledged he is meeting the issue head-on.

"I can assure you that we will get to the bottom of this deplorable incident," the President said.

He said he won a clear mandate in last year's landslide election and intends to follow it up regardless of the Watergate case.

The President said the electorate had "a clear choice" in his 1972 presidential campaign against Democrat George McGovern and that the same distinctions on domestic and international issues still exist.

"We will respond to go forward now and achieve it," he said.

Officially the crowd at the dinner was estimated at about 1,000 paying guests, which would mean a $1-million gross at $1,000 a plate, but congressional campaign-committee sources said privately the gross may be a disappointing $750,000 to $800,- 000. The normal take for these off-election-year Republican galas has been about $1.4

million.
Nixon told the crowd that "I have had as you know political years in politics ... I have known times when I wondered if I had any friends."

POSTCARD

Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — The market looks pretty good so I bought some futures in Betty Crocker. The cake mix lady.

We are deep in cake baking. Me and the youngest girl child. She made the cake for me. Then she decided to sell it. The kitchen was suddenly full of grumpy little moppets. Sampling the cake and dropping crumbs on the floor.

Great salesman! She said: "Try just a little bit. Then go ask your mother for a nickel."

By evening she had made 40 cents. Riches! Found her career. She said: "I'll make another one tomorrow."

I said: "Look don't get too rich." I said: "It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God." (Grandma quoted that to me regularly. It made such an impression. I am poor to this very day. Open up those Pearly Gates! Here comes Job's turkey!)

I said: "There's something wrong about this picture. I'm buying the cake mix. And you're getting the profit."

She said: "You can have a piece without paying a nickel." We got some more cake mix — (Let's hear it for Betty Crocker!) — and made a new cake. The way you tell a cake is done, you poke it with a toothpick. Did you know that? True.

She said: "We've got to advertise."

There are five building complexes at Snug Harbor. She decided to put a notice on each. We put notices just above the cluster of mail boxes.

DELICIOUS CHOCOLATE CAKE

Made by Andrea and beaten 600 times!

Fact: She beats the batter six hundred strokes. I am delegated to keep track of them by hundreds.

That's two hundred. Write it down.

I said: "It sounds like I beat you six hundred times. That's a bad image."

She made a parenthesis correction: ("The cake batter was beaten 600 times. Not Andrea. Her Father did not beat her. He is nice.")

She wrote: "This is the same delicious cake that got good reviews in the newspaper. (I think I did give it a printed vote of confidence. Families must stick together.)"

She wrote: "5 cents a slice."

Sesame Seeds Dip

Geneva — World production of sesame seeds in 1972 was 1.28 million tons, a 5 per cent decline from 1971, largely because of a drop in India, the world's largest producer.

She said: "I should charge more. It's very popular cake."

I said: "Don't price yourself out of the market."

She wrote: "Big gourmet slice 10 cents."

Open for business.

I am loaded with enterprising moppets. Fortune's cookie. The older daughter — (at this age) — ran a lemonade stand. Guess who paid for the lemons?

We lived on a dead end street. Three people in the block. Every once in awhile I had to go down and buy a glass of lemonade to keep her from being discouraged.

I drank some. She drank some. We gave some to the dog who refused it.

I was sloshing with lemonade. Vitamin C to the eyeballs. When I walked I could hear lemonade making waves in my stomach.

Everybody said the lemonade stand was a great success. All her friends did. I didn't say anything. I just went burp! Excuse me.

Free enterprise. That's what made America great. I ran a small sidewalk store myself at age eight or so. One day I sold

Concert Planned

Paris (UPI) — The San Francisco Symphony Orchestra will give a special gala concert in Paris May 15 for the Military and Hospitalier Order of Saint John of Jerusalem. Rhodes and Malta. Seiji Ozawa will conduct.

grandma's new hat — the kid who bought it wanted the leathers to play Indian.

Grandma said: "I've a notion to fix you so you can't sit down for a week!"

She went to the boy's mother and tried to get the hat back. She got the hat but the feathers were pretty droopy. She told my grandfather she hoped the Lord would give her strength.

"That boy will be the death of me yet," she said.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it: AXYDLBAAXR is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
